INTRODUCTION.

I. REVOLUTIONARY RECORDS OF THE STATE.

IN the compilation of the following Military and Naval record of Connecticut in the War of the Revolution, as called for by Act of the General Assembly approved April 13, 1887, various sources of information have been sought and examined. The original and official manuscripts bearing upon the history of that interesting period are, and long have been, in a more or less dispersed condition — a fact true of the records of all the Thirteen States — and in some instances the greater part has been either lost or destroyed. In the case of Connecticut, while certain gaps occur at intervals in the continuity of her Revolutionary Papers, the more valuable portions have fortunately been preserved and are deposited in permanent and accessible archives. Of this material, the State herself retains a considerable proportion, the Departments of the General Government at Washington contain much, and the remainder has passed by gift and purchase into the keeping of individuals, Societies, and Libraries throughout the country. For convenient reference the documents may be classified as follows:

1. The original minutes of the proceedings of the General Assembly of Connecticut, covering the period of the war, on file in the office of the Secretary of State, Hartford.

2. The original minutes of the proceedings of the Governor and Council, or Committee of War, covering the period of the war, on file in the State Library, Hartford.

3. Pay-Rolls of the Connecticut Regiments in the Continental "Line" for certain years, and scattering pay-table accounts of State troops and militia, together with individual accounts, bound in twelve volumes, on file in the office of the State Comptroller, Hartford.

4. Thirty-eight bound folio volumes, marked "Revolutionary War," covering a period of ten years or more from 1774, and containing numerous original rolls, letters, accounts, resolutions, petitions, town-lists, and similar material, unbound, on file in the State Library.

5. Rolls, letters, and various documents bearing on the service of Connecticut troops, on file among the papers of General Washington in the Department of State, Washington D. C.

6. Forty-seven bound folio volumes, containing company and regimental muster and pay rolls of the regiments of the Connecticut "Line," together with numerous militia rolls and miscellaneous papers, and the large mass of applications for pensions, on file in the Pension Bureau, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

7. The "Trumbull Papers," consisting of twenty-two bound volumes, containing the official correspondence of Governor Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut during the entire period of the war, inclusive also of many rolls and miscellaneous documents, in possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society, Boston.

8. Various Revolutionary papers, military and naval, in possession of the Connecticut Historical Society, Hartford.

9. Forty or more Orderly Books, kept by Connecticut officers during the war, containing general, division, brigade, and regimental orders issued in camp and on the march, in the possession for the most part of individuals and Societies.

10. Miscellaneous letters, rol' maps, diaries, and other papers in the hands of descendants of Revolutionary sold.rs, individuals, and collectors, or deposited in Libraries and State and Town archives.

Supplementing these documents, and included among the authorities on which this work is based, must be mentioned the mass of original letters and papers which have found their way into print in such publications as Force's American Archives, the volumes issued by Historical Societies, magazines, genealogies, monographs, and Town histories.

II. ARRANGEMENT OF THE ROLLS.

The several rolls and lists in the following pages, compiled from the foregoing records, have been arranged chronologically according to the description of the service in which the troops engaged. Thus, after the first alarm, the Continental soldiers are classified in the order in which they were called out, then the State troops, and finally the Militia, with special lists following.

The Lexington Alarm. — The first lists in the record, grouped under the head of the "Outbreak of the War," include the names of the men who, under the provocation of the moment, marched to the relief of their Massachusetts neighbors in the Lexington Alarm. Some explanation of the nature of this service appears in the introductory text on pages 3 and 4. It will be observed that the forty-eight towns from which the companies set out represent, with three exceptions, the eastern and central counties, which were then the thickly settled sections of the State, the nearest to the point of danger, the best prepared for an emergency, and the most accessible in case of alarm. It may also be noticed that the four thousand townsmen who responded to the Lexington call were a representative body, largely descendants of original settlers, including all elements in the different communities, — judges, pastors, lawyers, physicians, farmers, mechanics, sailors, laborers, — and that as a list of a respectable number of the male inhabitants of the State in 1775, which may be utilized in historical and genealogical researches, a peculiar interest attaches to it. Following in their proper place are the names of the men engaged in the Ticonderoga enterprise.

Continental Troops. — Next in order have been arranged the rolls of the Connecticut quota of that part of the Revolutionary forces known as the "Continental" troops, which constituted the body of Washington's army in the field throughout the war. They stand first in importance, as explained on page 34, and as appears from their military history in the text introductory to the subdivisions A, B, C, and D, under which they have been classified. After the Lexington Alarm the State raised eight regiments, which were adopted as Continental, to serve to the close of the year 1775. She furnished eight for the year 1776, and eight, with a large additional quota, for the three years' term from 1777 to 1781. Thereafter, from 1781 to 1783, the numbers were reduced by consolidations. The rosters of these troops form a large portion of the record (pages 33 to 370), and with the exception of some of the rolls for 1775 and the greater part of those for 1776, are believed to be substantially complete. In view of the importance of the campaign of 1776, it is to be regretted that the rolls of seven of the Continental regiments for that year are missing. The names of very many of the men, however, appear on the rolls of 1775, when they served their first term, or on the rolls of 1777, when they re-enlisted for three years or the war, or again on the rolls of State troops and militia in subsequent years. In the absence of these lists the number of officers and soldiers that entered the Continental service from Connecticut during the war can only be approximately estimated; but it may be placed at about fifteen thousand.

State Troops. — Under this heading appear a certain number of regiments which were neither Continental nor militia, but were raised mainly in the early part of the war, to act as reinforcements for the army in the field, for limited terms. Organized by authority of the State or the Governor, with the officers' commissions signed by the Governor, they were designated as State troops, and at different periods rendered considerable service.

The Militia. — The third distinctive class of troops was the standing Militia of the State, whose rolls, so far as preserved, are arranged, like the preceding, in chronological order. Here again several serious gaps occur in the list, which is a special misfortune from a historical point of view, inasmuch as the militia represented the greater part of the male population of the State. The rolls here published, however, represent a fair proportion of the regiments and men that were called into active service. From the return, as given on page 447, for the year 1782, it may be inferred that the number of effective militia varied during the years of the war from twenty-two to twenty-five thousand.

Miscellaneous Rolls. — The closing pages of the work contain such portions of the Naval record of Connecticut as have been preserved among the documents, also unclassified lists of minutemen, volunteers, independent companies, and individual officers and soldiers, and copies of the Pension lists as published in Congressional and Government documents at various periods since the war.

In compiling and arranging the rolls, as grouped above, a limited amount of explanatory text has been inserted, showing where and for what terms the troops served. It has been possible to do this with a satisfactory degree of accuracy in the case of the regiments of the Continental "Line," and on pages 125–140 and 301–311 may be found an outline of their organization and service generally — battles, encampments, itinerary, and formations — which has been prepared from original letters and Order-books. An introductory note also appears before each regimental roster. In the case of many of the militia regiments and detachments, no record of service has been found.

[illegible] publication of this work will doubtless lead to the production or discovery of missing [illegible], including rolls of entire regiments, companies, or the record of individuals, which i[illegible] be desirable to issue in supplementary form in the future. It is especially requested that the [illegible] or copies of these may be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of Connecticut at Hartford.

III. RELATION OF THE STATE TO THE WAR.

[illegible] number of separate names in the following lists, as arranged in the Index, reaches a [illegible] twenty-seven thousand eight hundred and twenty-three. In a few cases, probably, through [illegible] spelling of names, the same individual has been entered more than once. On the other [illegible]hand, [illegible] is to be observed that in numerous cases the same name represents different individuals. Thus, in the Lexington Alarm list, the William Lyon, of New Haven, could not have been the [illegible] Lyon of Woodstock, nor Lieut. William Adams, of the Fourth "Connecticut Line" for [illegible] be either of the privates of the same name in his regiment. In the Index, however, these [illegible] individuals count only as two — William Lyon and William Adams. The identity of others [illegible] to the absence of a "residence" column in many of the rolls, cannot always be distinguished. From these circumstances it is evidently impossible to give the exact number of different [illegible]dividuals of whom some record has been entered. A total of thirty thousand may be [illegible] as a reasonable estimate. Of this number some ten thousand represent Continental [illegible] — men who had enlisted for long terms and served in the field outside of the State [illegible] Washington's immediate command. A complete record, as already indicated, would em[illegible] several thousand additional names, especially of the militia. From expressions used [illegible] Governor Trumbull in his correspondence, the wording of the calls for temporary service, [illegible] militia lists, it is apparent that, barring a small loyalist element [illegible] State, nearly every able-bodied man in Connecticut rendered, or was enrolled as notified and prepared to render, some kind of service during the Revolutionary War. The exposed situation of the State, with her entire coast subject to incursions and ravages by the enemy and her proximity to the several fields of operations in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New York, required her to remain in a constant state of preparation. On this account, and because of the size of her population, then relatively large, she was regarded as one of the four strong States supporting the cause, ranking in capacity next after Massachusetts, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. How far the State was represented with her neighbors in the fortunes of the war, sharing with them both success and defeat, is a matter of general history, confirmed by the record in the following pages, from which it appears that after the Lexington Alarm, Connecticut troops participated in all the principal battles, with the exception of those fought in the extreme Southern field. In the preparation of this record assistance has been received, necessarily, from many quarters. Acknowledgments are especially due to Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, lately Secretary of State, Washington, D. C., who permitted free access to the rich collection of Revolutionary papers in that Department; to Gen. James B. Coit, Chief of the Old War and Navy Division, Pension Bureau, where another valuable collection accumulated in the early part of the century as evidence in pension claims; to Hon. Charles J. Hoadly, Librarian of the Connecticut State Library; to Hon. J. Hammond Trumbull, President of the Connecticut Historical Society; to Dr. Samuel A. Green, Librarian of the Massachusetts Historical Society; to Maj. E. K. Winship, Washington, D. C.; and to others — private individuals, librarians, and officials — who have extended courtesies and facilities. The interest taken in the work by United States Senator Joseph R. Hawley, by Governors Henry B. Harrison, Phineas C. Lounsbury, and Morgan G. Bulkeley, and by Adjutants-General Stephen R. Smith, Frederick E. Camp, and Lucius A. Barbour, during whose terms of office the compilation was made, is also cordially acknowledged. To Col. George M. White, Assistant Adjutant-General of the State, under whose general supervision the work has progressed, the Editor is under many and special obligations.

A.—THE LEXINGTON ALARM.

THE Revolutionary record of Connecticut opens with her response to the historic Le alarm of April 19, 1775, and closes eight years and a half later with the disba after the Peace, of her last regiment in the field, in November, 1783.

The attitude assumed by the colonists at the beginning of the struggle was that of v and self-defense. Alarmed by the determination of the home government, openly declared recent years, to establish its authority more firmly in America, they entered vigorous protests the new policy as tending to endanger certain privileges of their own, assured to them by ch long enjoyment ile differing somewhat from each other, either in creed, temperament, de manners, th the several colonies, or the great majority of them, stood politically, on the of non-interference in their local affairs. They advocated home-r bin general interests of the British Empire, which, in effect, repres England and her larger dependencies at the present day. In this s ne American colonies was the cause of all. An attempt upon the p at against all. An alarm sounded in one locality was bound to spread by every other.

Connecticut, especially in her eastern section, this colonial spirit took deep root, a achusetts, in 1774, was made the subject of restrictive measures by the home ministry, ndignation was aroused. As the possibility of a collision became apparent town meetings w contributions of money and provisions were voted for the distressed inhabitants of Bosto port had been closed by act of Parliament, non-intercourse with British merchants advised eral congress representing all the colonies proposed, and Committees of Correspondence a to circulate all news of importance. A convention of delegates from the two counties London and Windham, held at Norwich, September 8, 1774, went further and recommen towns to keep up their stock of ammunition and attend to the exercise of the train-bands Assembly of the Colony, which in May, 1774, adopted resolutions protesting against the re of Parliament touching America, the drift of events was so far recognized, that, in O required the selectmen of the towns to provide a double quantity of "powder, balls, and f in January, 1775, ordered the entire militia to muster and drill once a week during the thre following. The situation was characterized as "an alarming crisis."

The crisis culminated on April 19, 1775. A detachment of British troops marching Boston to seize military stores alleged to have been collected at Concord for hostile purp met upon the road by the Provincials and a bloody encounter took place. The since far mishes of Lexington and Concord were fought, which precipitated the Revolutionary "alarm" was immediately spread in every direction, so that on the 27th of April it had r principal points as far as Baltimore, and by the 11th of May was posted at Charles throughout New England the news was rapidly carried by horse "expresses" from tow was dispatched to Connecticut by the Massachusetts Committee of Safety at Waterto progress of the fighting, or "near to lock" of Wednesday morning, April 19th: "T srael Bessel, is charged to alarm the country quite to Connecticut, and all persons are urnish him with fresh horses as they may be eeded." During Thursday, the 20th, the irculating through the eastern part of the Colony. The people of Windham County ıerally by noon. It reached Governor Trumbull at Lebanon not long after. It was doıbtless at rtford before night; at New Haven on the following evening, Friday, the 21st, and forwarded n there through Fairfield and Stamford to New York.

Prepared to a certain extent for such an alarm, a large number of able-bodied men in Conticut hurried off to Massachusetts. The wording used in the records of the day, "marched for the ef of Boston," expresses alike the extent of their sympathies and the nature of t e service nded. The response to the alarm was not the official action of the Colony, nor, on the other d, an impromptu movement of individuals without previous organization. An "uprising" of ed men might have partaken of a mob character, and the militia regiments as such could only alled out by the governor or legislature. It was rather a movement of the townsmen marching er their militia organizations. The gathering thus became orderly as well as spontaneous, represented the town spirit shown previously in protests and resolutions. It appears from records that in some cases the companies or train-bands collected and marched off under their ers without further orders; in other cases, the colonels taking the lead, called out a certain ber of their men and directed them to march forthwith to the point of danger; in a few cases nteer companies were organized for the special service; in addition, many individuals, not being to the militia, joined in the march, either providing for themselves or going with the comes. Colonel Williams of the 11th Regiment, sends out word on the 20th, "that it will be dient for every man to go who is fit and willing." A letter dated Wethersfield, April 23d, dees the scene there as follows: "We are all in motion here, and equipt from the Town yester- one hundred young men, who cheerfully offered their service, twenty-days' provision and y-four rounds per man. They are all well armed and in high spirits. My brother has gone with ı and others of the first property. Our neighboring towns are all arming and moving. Men of first character shoulder their arms and march off for the field of action. We shall by night, several thousands from this Colony on their march. . . . . We fix on our Standards and ms the Colony arms, with the motto 'qui transtulit sustinet,' round it in letters of gold, which construe thus: 'God, who transplanted us hither, will support us.'" Writing from Wallingford, l 24th, Mr. James Lockwood says: "Col. Wadsworth was over at this place most of yesterday has ordered twenty men out of each Company of his Regiment, some of which had already set ınd others go this morning. . . . The Country beyond here are all gone." Nor were the ny officials inactive. Upon receiving "the tragical narrative" from Massachusetts, Gov. nbull issued writs for a special meeting of the Assembly on the 26th, and the general Committee Correspondence sent prompt assurance of assistance to President [illegible] of the Massachusetts rincial Congress. Writing from Lebanon on the 21st, the Comm[illegible] aking to support your Province. . . . The ardour of our peo[illegible] back. The Colonels are to forward part of the best men and th[illegible] as possi the remainder to be ready at a moment's warning. These are the present movements with us.'

The number of men who are reported in the records to have marched in the Lexington alarm about four thousand. The duty was necessarily temporary and brief. Some of the companies rned home before reaching Boston, as their presence was not needed. Upon the organization o ments for service during the year, many of the same men enlisted and continued for differen ns during the war. At the May session of the Legislature their service was recognized and th ı paid for the time as given on the following lists, the originals of which are on file in the Stat rary, Rev. War, Vol. II.

B.—THE TICONDEROGA ENTERPRISE.

THE possession and control of Lakes George and Champlain had, from an early date, been regarded by the people of New York and New England as necessary to their protection against the encroachments of the French in Canada. It was around Ticonderoga and Crown Point that the greater part of the fighting in the French and Indian War occurred. When the Revolutionary struggle opened, the importance of those posts was at once recognized in the northern colonies, and far-sighted individuals in Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New York, alike proposed their immediate seizure. In addition Fort Ticonderoga contained cannon and stores just then much needed by the Provincials. The step seemed urgent inasmuch as England's hold on the Canadas was firmer than elsewhere in America, and the people of those provinces were not prepared to disturb it. In the approaching contest, accordingly, the line of the St. Lawrence and the lake region would again become the field of military operations.

In Connecticut and Massachusetts movements were set on foot to secure the old fortress at Ticonderoga immediately after the Lexington alarm. It was then garrisoned by Captain Delaplace of the Twenty-sixth Regiment, British army, and a small company of regulars. In Connecticut the enterprise originated, as reported by Capt. Edward Mott, one of the leaders engaged, in the following manner: "A number of the principal gentlemen of the Assembly at Hartford, on Friday, the twenty-eighth day of April, Conversing on the distressed Condition of the people of Boston, and the means necessary to relieve them, fell on the Scheme to take that Fortress [Ticonderoga], that we might have the advantage of the Cannon that were there, to relieve the people of Boston. I told the Gentlemen that in my opinion it might be taken by surprise with a few men, if properly Conducted. On which they desired me, if I was willing to serve my country in that way, to join Captain Noah Phelps, of Simsbury, and Mr. Bernard Romans, on that design, and furnished us with three hundred Pounds in Cash from the Treasury, and desired us to go forward to the Upper Towns, and search into the situation of said Garrison, and, if I thought proper to proceed to take possession of the same." The gentlemen referred to by Mott, who on their individual notes procured the money from the Treasury, were Samuel Wyllys, Jesse Root, and Ezekiel Williams of Hartford, Samuel Bishop, Jr., and Adam Babcock, of New Haven, Samuel Holden Parsons, of New London, Silas Deane, of Wethersfield, William Williams, of Lebanon, Charles Webb, of Stamford, Joshua Porter, of Salisbury, and Thomas Mumford, of Groton. With this informal authority Captains Mott and Phelps, with six or eight volunteers from Hartford, proceeded to Salisbury where the entire party was increased to sixteen. From that point they continued to Pittsfield, Mass., where Col. James Easton, John Brown, Israel Dickinson, and about fifty men were enlisted in the enterprise. In the Hampshire Grants Col. Ethan Allen and Seth Warner, both natives of Connecticut, and one hundred Green Mountain Boys were added to the party, and early on May 10th the fortress was surprised and taken without loss. Capt. Phelps states in a memorial that when the expedition reached Bennington, a council of war was held which directed him and Mr. Hecock, from Sheffield, to proceed in disguise to the fort beforehand and report on its condition, which service he "cheerfully undertook."

Of the Connecticut party, Capt. Mott, as chairman, Epaphras Bull, Noah Phelps, and Col. Easton, of Pittsfield, constituted a "Committee of War for the expedition against Ticonderoga and Crown Point," and by its authority the command of the expedition at the time of the surprise was given to Col. Ethan Allen. That officer, in reporting his success to the Massachusetts authorities, stated that the attempt was made "by the order of the General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut."

In Massachusetts an independent movement was undertaken. The Provincial Committee of Safety, which had previously inquired into the condition of affairs in Canada, appreciated the importance of Ticonderoga, and it appears were urged to secure it by Benedict Arnold, who had then lately arrived with his New Haven Company in the Lexington Alarm. The Committee entrusted the undertaking to Arnold, and on May 3d appointed him "Colonel and Commander-in-Chief" of a body of men not exceeding four hundred which he was to enlist in Western Massachusetts and vicinity, and with them effect the capture of the fortress. Arnold started off alone and overtook the Connecticut expedition under Ethan Allen. By virtue of his Massachusetts commission he demanded the sole command of the party, but upon its refusal to accept his leadership, he marched with it to the fort and entered the gate "side by side" with Col. Allen. Col. Arnold then enlisted a portion of the regiment authorized by the committee and occupied points on the lakes, at times being in command at Crown Point, which had also been seized, and again at Ticonderoga. On May 18th with fifty men under Captains Brown and Oswald he surprised St. John — Oswald being one of the members of Arnold's New Haven Company.

Following up this successful stroke, Governor Trumbull ordered one of the newly raised regiments for the year '75, under Col. Hinman, to march immediately to Ticonderoga and Crown Point and occupy them. A request to this effect was also made by the Continental Congress. The Massachusetts Provincial Congress had informed Col. Arnold that as "the affairs of that expedition began in the Colony of Connecticut," they had written to its Assembly to assume full charge of it. Upon the arrival of Col. Hinman, however, Arnold declined to serve under him and disbanding his small regiment, resigned his Massachusetts' colonelcy June 24th, to appear next, in September, in command of the expedition through the Maine woods to Quebec.

Upon the assumption in July of the command of Northern New York, or the Northern Department as it was commonly known, by Major-Gen. Philip Schuyler, Fort Ticonderoga passed under the direction of the Continental authorities. It was held by the Americans throughout the war, except during the interval of the Burgoyne alarm and campaign from July to November, 1777.

The following lists are arranged from the original MSS. in the State Library, Rev. War, Vol. III. The first list represents, as far as the records indicate, the party of sixteen which Capt. Mott states to have started from Connecticut in the first instance to become the nucleus of the expedition.

THE CONTINENTAL ARMY.

THE following rosters of troops, arranged chronologically under the headings A, B, C, and D, include the quotas contributed by Connecticut to what was known as the Continental Army of the Revolution.

The term "Continental Army" first appears upon the printed records of the Continental Congress in the summary of the proceedings for June 14, 1775, where the form of enlistment to be subscribed by companies of riflemen is given. It was to be an enlistment into "the American Continental Army." On the same day a Committee of five was appointed to prepare rules and regulations for the government of this prospective army, which were reported and adopted on the 30th. On June 15th, it was resolved "That a General be appointed to command all the Continental forces, raised or to be raised, for the defence of American Liberty," and Washington was unanimously elected.

At the opening of the War, or for the year 1775, no Continental force was in the first instance organized as such by Congress. As the New England Colonies were mustering their own troops around Boston and Ticonderoga after the Lexington alarm, Congress adopted them as Continental. Troops joining them from New York and elsewhere were generally recruited on the Continental basis. For the succeeding years of the war, Congress took the initiative and raised troops for the common army under its own regulations respecting pay, subsistence, and term of service. The force, as will appear, was organized and re-organized several times and for various terms.

These Continentals were the "regulars" of the Revolution. They formed the main army in the field and were the chief dependence of the Colonial cause. In arranging rosters of that war, accordingly, the Continental army occupies the central and most prominent place. All other troops raised during the war, whether State or militia, were to act as reinforcements of this army or to relieve it by serving in alarms at different points. They are so classified after the Continentals. See "Arrangement of the Rolls" in the Introduction.

ORGANIZATION.—The voluntary mustering in the Alarm of April 19th was followed immediately by the first authorized call for troops. On the 20th, upon the receipt of the Lexington news, Gov. Trumbull summoned the General Assembly to a special session at Hartford to convene the following Wednesday, April 26th. Publishing the call on his own views of the emergency he also received urgent appeals from the Massachusetts authorities for aid and support. Under date of April 20th the Committee of Safety at Cambridge wrote to him as follows: "As the troops have now commenced hostilities, we think it our duty to exert our utmost strength to save our country from absolute slavery. We pray your Honours would afford us all the assistance in your power, and shall be glad that our brethren who come to our aid may be supplied with military stores and provisions, as we have none of either more than is absolutely necessary for ourselves." Again on April 26th they wrote: "The distressed situation in which we are, and the danger to which the liberties of all America, and especially the New England Colonies are exposed, will be the best apology for the importunate application to you for immediate assistance. We pray as you regard the safety of your country, that as large a number of troops as you can spare may immediately march forward."

The Assembly met on the date indicated and held a ten days' session, adjourning Saturday noon, May 6th. While preparing for resistance it refrained from aggressive declarations. It recognized the skirmishes at Lexington and Concord as "Sundry acts of hostility and violence committed in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, by which many lives have been lost," and through a committee of two of its members, as bearers of a letter from the Governor, requested General Gage at Boston to explain his military preparations and late incursion. Its attitude is represented in these expressions in the Governor's letter: "The people of this Colony, you may rely upon it, abhor the idea of taking up arms against the troops of their sovereign, and dread nothing so much as the horrors of a civil war. But, Sir, at the same time we beg leave to assure your Excellency, that as they apprehend themselves justified by the principle of self-defence, they are most firmly resolved to defend their rights and privileges to the last extremity; nor will they be restrained from giving aid to their brethren if any unjustifiable attack is made upon them."

The leading measure of the session was An Act for assembling, equipping, etc., a Number of the Inhabitants of this Colony for the Special Defence and Safety thereof. It provided that one fourth part of the Colony militia should be forthwith enlisted, accoutred, and assembled, to be led and conducted as the General Assembly should order. This apportionment represented about six thousand men, who were to be distributed in six regiments of ten companies each, with a full complement of field, staff, and line officers. The entire body was to be commanded by one major-general and two brigadier-generals, each of whom was also to take command of a regiment as colonel. Arms, equipments, pay, billeting, and bounty money were provided, and "beating orders" delivered to the officers to recruit their companies by voluntary enlistment. The term of service was not to exceed seven months.

At the third special session of the Assembly, convened July 1, 1775, two more regiments, somewhat smaller, were ordered, making eight in all, consisting of about seven thousand four hundred men. This included the entire number of troops called out by authority of the Colony, for service which took them beyond its limits, in the year 1775. The officers were all appointed by the Assembly.

As Continental Troops.—Accepting war as inevitable the Continental Congress at Philadelphia proceeded, as stated on page 34, to organize a Continental Army. The troops which had hurriedly gathered around Boston, including regiments from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and two of the Connecticut regiments referred to above, were already in the field as good material for the nucleus of such an army. Washington arrived in camp at Cambridge on July 3d, and the Colony troops having accepted his leadership and the regulations of Congress, the entire force was placed upon a Continental establishment. This new relation was officially announced by Washington in General Orders dated "Head Quarters, Cambridge, July 4, 1775," as follows:

. . . . . .

The Continental Congress having now taken all the Troops of the several Colonies, which have been raised, or which may be hereafter raised, for the support and defence of the Liberties of America into their Pay and Service; They are now the Troops of the United Provinces of North America; and it is to be hoped that all Distinctions of Colonies will be laid aside; so that one and the same spirit may animate the whole, and the only Contest be, who shall render on this great and trying occasion, the most essential Service to the great and common cause in which we are all engaged.

Service.— Of the eight Connecticut regiments organized as stated, five were ordered at different times during the summer to the Boston camps under Washington and three to the Northern Department under Schuyler. The five were those of Generals Spencer and Putnam and Colonels Parsons, Charles Webb, and Huntington. With them also were four companies of the regiments under Schuyler, indicated in the rolls. These troops were engaged with the army in general in throwing up works around Boston and maintaining the siege of the place. Some disatisfaction occurred among the men and many returned home just before the expiration of their term of service. Their excuses were those of men who had enlisted provisionally and as yet had not learned the true meaning of military discipline. Desertion they disclaimed. The trouble proved to be temporary, as the regiments, upon the enlistment of troops for the next year, were recruited to the average strength.

The three regiments for the Northern Department were those of General Wooster and Colonels Hinman and Waterbury, with one company of Colonel Parsons' regiment. They took part in the operations under Schuyler and Montgomery, looking to the secure possession of Lakes George and Champlain and the invasion of Canada. Much sickness prevailed among the men. The records show that these regiments at first declined to be mustered as Continental, the men preferring to remain during their term, which expired December 10, on the Colony establishment; but the matter coming before the Legislature at its October session, it resolved that all the Connecticut troops "then employed against the ministerial troops in Canada, shall be suject to the rules, orders, regulations, and discipline of the Congress of the twelve United Colonies during the time of their enlistment." They thus became what they had been considered in the field — Continental regiments.

Bunker Hill and Quebec.— In a note appended to General Putnam's, or the Third Regiment, some statements appear respecting the Connecticut detachment at Bunker Hill, and at the close of the record for 1775 (following Huntington's regiment) the record of Connecticut men in the Quebec Expedition is given.

The list of Staff officers and rosters of the regiments for 1775, compiled from the records, State Library, Rev. War, Vols. II and III, and other original sources, are as follows:

Wooster's Provisional Regiment.—(See p. 39, text preceding "Field and Staff.") No rolls of this command appear on file. It was recruited for temporary service. These officers had served in '75. Elmore was Maj. of Hinman's; Painter, Capt. in Col. Seth Warner's regiment, of which he afterwards became Maj.; Walker, Lieut. in Wooster's regt. The provisional command served in Canada, a part of the time before Quebec, until operations there were abandoned in May, '76. It broke up soon after.

Jonathan Heart, of Southington, (afterwards an officer through the war,) is said to have been in one of the regiments before Boston in '75. He may have been a volunteer in the 2^{d} Co. of Spencer's Regt. as Capt. Scott of that Co. authorizes the Pay table Committee to deliver the pay for his men "to Jonathan Heart."

A number of men entered as deserters about Dec. 1, afterwards explained, in petitions, that they had no intention of deserting, but believed that their term had expired on that date instead of the 10th. The Assembly ordered them to be paid for full time. Some of these cases are on record, viz.: Serjt. Joseph Stocking, Privates Thos. Jeroms, Thos. Gilbert, Amos Rose, and Thos. Gould (not on the Co. rolls above), of the 6th Co.; Amos Fuller, of the 8th Co.; and William Crane, of Wethersfield, of the 9th Co. Respecting the latter, his mother, Lydia Crane, states in petition that she had three sons in the service in 1775. The eldest (name not given) died in camp; the second (probably Joseph Crane, 9th Co.) returned; and the third, the above William Crane, who had enlisted in Chester's Co. and fought at Bunker Hill, left his regiment about Nov. 30, supposing his time out, but being taking down with fever on the way, wandered in his delirium to Leicester, Mass., and died there.

THIRD REGIMENT—GEN. PUTNAM'S—1775.

[Regiment raised on the first call for troops by the Legislature at special session of April–May, 1775. It was recruited in Windham County, with one Company from New London County, as indicated by the residences of the officers. Marching in May by companies to the camps forming around Boston, it was stationed during the siege in Putnam's Center Division at Cambridge until expiration of term of service, Dec. 10, 1775. In July it was adopted as Continental. A detachment of the officers and men was engaged at Bunker Hill, as stated in the note on the battle appended to the last Company; a few men also joined the Quebec expedition. In re-enlisting troops for service in 1776, this regiment was re-organized with Benedict Arnold, then before Quebec, as Colonel.]

NOTE ON BUNKER HILL.

THE number of Connecticut troops present at this engagement was about four hundred. As far as letters and meagre records show they were detailed as follows: On the evening of June 16, '75, a body of one thousand men from the Massachusetts and Connecticut regiments around Cambridge, under the immediate command of Col. Prescott, was ordered to Charlestown Neck to fortify Bunker's (Breed's) Hill. Of this number two hundred were from Conn. under the command of Capt. Knowlton, the detachment being made up of details of one subaltern officer and about thirty men from companies in Putnam's and Spencer's regiments. Lt.-Col. Storrs, of Putnam's, states that he sent from his company, "Lieut. Dana, Serjt. Fuller, Corp. Webb, and 28 Privates." Capt. Chester, of Spencer's, states that thirty-one went from his company, probably under Lieut. Stephen Goodrich. Putnam's own company was represented by Lieut. Grosvenor and thirty men.

Prescott's command, working all night, completed a redoubt which threatened the British shipping. Lord Howe determined to drive the "rebels" from it, and the battle of Bunker Hill followed, June 17. During the progress of the action, Captain Knowlton and the Connecticut men, with others, were sent to the left where they posted themselves behind a stone wall and inflicted heavy loss upon the enemy. Reinforcements from the American camp arrived both before and during the battle. Among these were the whole or portions of at least three companies of Connecticut troops. Captain Chester reached the stone wall with the rest of his company, perhaps sixty men, and Captains Clark and Coit, of Parsons' regiment, also arrived. These with the two hundred detailed the evening before would make about four hundred as Connecticut's representation at the battle.

Among the Connecticut officers mentioned as present in the action were Gen. Putnam, in general command, Major Durkee, Captains Chester, Clark, Coit, Lieuts. Dana, Keyes, Hide, Webb, Grosvenor, Bingham (of Norwich), and Ensigns Hill and Bill (of Lebanon). A few of the men's names are also reported, namely: Roger Fox, William Cheeney, Asahel Lyon, Benjamin Rist, Samuel Ashbo, Gershom Smith, Matthew Cummings, Daniel Memory — killed; Philip Johnston, Wilson Rowlandson, Lawrence Sullivan, William Robinson, Benjamin Ross — prisoners; Gershom Clark, of Lebanon, wounded; James Law, of Lebanon — right arm broken; John Arnold, Ebenezer Clark, Elijah Abbe, William Clark, Beriah Geer, Nathan Richardson, William Watrous, Sylvanus Snow, William Moore, John Wampee, and Timothy Bugbee — lost their guns in the fight. As to losses, one account gives fourteen killed and thirty wounded among the Connecticut men. Dr. Philip Turner is mentioned as "attendg wounded after Charlestown Battle." Lawrence Sullivan, prisoner, was released Feb. 24, '76. William Crane, of Wethersfield, Chester's Co., was in the action.

Lieut.-Col. Storrs makes the following entry in his diary (MSS.) June 17, the day of the battle:

"At sunrise this morning a fire began from ye ships, but moderate. About 10 went down to ye Hill to Genl. Putnam's Post, who ye command. Some shot whistled around us. Tarried there a spell and Returned to have my company in readiness to relieve them — One killed & 1 wounded when I came away. About 2 o'clock there was a brisk cannonade from ye ships on ye Battery or Entrenchment. At —— orders came to turn out immediately, and that the Regulars were landing at sundry places. Went to Head Quarters for our Regimental ——. Received orders to repair with our Regiment to No. 1, and defend it. No enemy appearing — orders soon came that our People in the Intrenchment were retreating and for us to secure ye retreat. Immediately marched for their relief. The Regulars did not come off from Bunker's Hill but have taken possession of the Intrenchments and our People make a Stand on Winter Hill and we immediately went to entrenching. Flung up by morning an entrenchment about 100 feet square. Done principally by our Regiment under Putnam's directions. Had but little sleep the night."

FOURTH REGIMENT—COL. HINMAN'S—1775.

[Raised on the first call for troops, April–May, 1775, and recruited mainly in Litchfield County. Upon the surprise of Ft. Ticonderoga, May 10, Gov. Trumbull ordered this regiment to march as soon as possible to secure that post and Crown Point against recapture. A request to this effect was also made by the Continental Congress. The regiment reached Ticonderoga in June and Col. Hinman assumed command until the arrival of Gen. Schuyler. It took part in the operations of the Northern Department until expiration of term of service Dec., 1775. Regiment suffered much from sickness, and many men were mustered out in Oct.–Nov., 1775.]

[1] Lieut. Halsey states that he served as Asst. Engineer in North. Dept. from Sept. 22 to Nov. 14, '75, and acted as such through the siege of St. John in Oct. He also commanded a gondola on the lakes. Gen. Schuyler accused him of insubordination, &c., but Halsey explains the charge in petition to Congress, Sept. 3, '76, given in Am. Archives, 5 Ser. Vol. ii, p. 137. See Gen. Staff for 1775.

THE QUEBEC EXPEDITION, 1775.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS DETACHED FROM THE CONNECTICUT TROOPS.

[Upon the capture of Fort Ticonderoga in May, '75, the project of invading Canada became popular both in Congress and the Army. Gen. Montgomery having been authorized to make the attempt by way of Lake Champlain, Washington organized an expedition to co-operate with him by way of the Kennebec and the Maine woods. This force was composed of thirteen companies of volunteers detached from the several New England regiments around Boston and the Penn. and Va. rifle companies lately arrived in camp—the total number of officers and men being 1300. Connecticut's quota was one full Company, 100 strong. Col. Benedict Arnold was assigned to the command of the force with Lieut. Cols. Green, of R. I., and Enos, of Conn., and Maj's Bigelow of Mass. and Meigs of Conn., as the other field officers. The Connecticut Co. was commanded by Capt. Hanchett. Montgomery and Arnold joined forces before Quebec and attempted its capture by assault, Dec. 31, '75, with the well known disastrous result.]

FIELD AND STAFF.

Colonel:	Benedict Arnold,	New Haven,	Appt. by Washington, about Sept. 1, '75, Col. com^{ding} Exp.; wounded in assault upon Quebec, Dec. 31, '75; cont. in com^{d} before Queb. until relieved by Gen. Wooster, Ap. 1, '76. See Ticond. Exp.

In command of Arnold's rear division; returned with his party, through lack of provisions, to Camp at Boston; tried by Court-martial and acquitted of blame; served with militia in '76–'78; removed to Vermont and there appt. Brig. Gen. militia; served as such in North. Dept. in 1781.
Major:	Return Jonathan Meigs,	Middletown,	Maj., Spencer's Regt. In command of Arnold's second division; taken pris. in assault upon Quebec, Dec. 31, '75; released on parole, May 16, '76; exch. Jan. 10, '77; re-ent. Cont. service in '77.

2^{d} Lieut.:	Abijah Savage,	Middletown,	Lieut. 4th Co., Spencer's Regt.; pris. at Quebec, Dec. 31, '75; exch. Jan. 10, '77; re-ent. Cont. service in '77.
Ensign:	James Knowles,	Wethersfield,	Appt. from Serj., Chester's Co., Spencer's Regt.; rept. later in privateer service.

[1] Oswald, a young man, native of Great Britain, was residing in New Haven in the fall of '74, and assisted in organizing the Second Co. Gov.'s Foot Guards. Marching to Boston in the Lexington alarm, he went with Arnold to Ticonderoga and Crown Point and again on the Quebec Exp. Returning to New Haven after his exchange, he was appt. Lieut. Col. of Lamb's artillery, and assisted in recruiting the Conn. quota. In private letters he mentions his wife and child in New Haven, and in 1779 his name appears among the officers whose families were then at Farmington.

The following is "a true List of the soldiers . . . that were Taken at the Defeat of Quebec the 31st of December, A. D. 1775, Belonging to Capt. Oliver Hanchett's Company."

NOTES ON THE SERVICE, 1775.

ARMS AND ACCOUTREMENTS. — At the special April session of the Legislature, when the first regiments were called out, it was enacted that the enlisted men should be furnished with good fire-arms, belonging to the colony, if they were unable to furnish themselves; and if they found their own arms, to be paid 10s. for the use of such arms. And in case more arms should be required they were to be impressed from householders not enrolled; ten shillings were to be awarded to all who offered guns, bayonets, and cartouch boxes to the soldiers. It was resolved at the same time that three thousand stand of arms be procured for the colony, "of the following dimensions, to wit: the length of the barrel three feet ten inches, the diameter of the bore from inside to inside three-quarters of an inch, the length of the blade of the bayonet fourteen inches, the length of the socket four inches and one-quarter; that the barrels be of suitable thickness, with iron ramrods and a spring in the lowest loop to secure the ramrods, a good substantial lock, and a good stock well mounted with brass and marked with the name or initial letters of the maker's name." Col. Records, Vol. XIV, p. 420. Officers wore swords, or "hangers" as then commonly called.

Soldiers' Rations. — At the May session, the ration for the troops was fixed as follows: Three-fourths of a pound of pork or one pound of beef, one pound of bread or flour, three pints of beer to each man per day — beef to be fresh two days in a week; also, a half-pint of rice or a pint of Indian meal; six ounces of butter, and three pints of peas or beans each man per week. Soldiers on fatigue duty were to be allowed one gill of rum each per day, and at no other time. Milk, candles, soap, molasses, vinegar, coffee, chocolate, sugar, tobacco, and vegetables in season, were to be provided subject to the order of general and field officers. After the troops became Continental, the ration, as authorized by Congress, was not as liberal, either in quantity or variety, as the colony allowance.

Pay of Officers and Soldiers. — At the April session the following was established as the pay per calendar month for officers and enlisted men:

Major-General,	£20 0	Captain,	£6 0	Quarter Master,	£3 0	Serjeant,	£2 8
Brig.-General,	17 0	Lieutenant,	4 0	Chaplain,	6 0	Corporal,	2 4
Colonel,	15 0	Ensign,	3 0	Surgeon,	7 10	Fifer and Drummer,	2 4
Lieut.-Colonel,	12 0	Adjutant,	5 10	Surgeon's Mate,	4 0	Private,	2 0
Major,	10 0

Uniforms and Camp Equipage. — The troops for 1775 were generally without uniforms. They marched in citizens' clothes, with blankets and knapsacks. A few exceptions are noted, such as Captain Chester's Wethersfield Company, of the Second Regiment, which was clothed "wholly in blue turned up with red," and Captain Arnold's company of Governor's Guards, New Haven, in the Lexington alarm. Individual officers provided themselves with uniforms, but their rank was distinguished by different colored ribbons, which they were directed to wear.

Camp equipage consisted of tents or "marques" for officers, tents for soldiers, and tin and brass kettles, iron pots, frying pans, wooden bowls, and quart cups for company cooking and "messes." Each company was allowed one cart or wagon.

Regimental Standards. — It was enacted by the Legislature that the eight regiments of '75 should be distinguished by flags of different colors, as follows: 1st Regt., yellow; 2d Regt., blue; 3d Regt., scarlet; 4th Regt., crimson; 5th Regt., white; 6th Regt., azure; 7th Regt., blue (?); 8th Regt., orange.

PRISONERS.

Beyond the men of Captain Hanchett's company, captured at the assault on Quebec, few Connecticut soldiers were taken prisoners in '75. Six or seven were captured at Bunker Hill, as noted. The following surrendered with Col. Ethan Allen near Montreal, Sept. 25, and were confined in jail at Halifax:

Roger Moore, Salisbury; Levi Barnum and Ebenezer Mack, Norfolk; John Gray, Samuel Lewis, Adonijah Muxum, David Goss [Goff?], Sharon; Ithuriel Flowers, Hartford; Charles Stewart, Stamford; Jonathan Mahn, Goshen; William Drinkwater, New Milford; Zachariah Brinsmade, Woodbury; John James Burque, Preston Denton, Barnabas Cone; Peter Noble (made his escape at Cape Fear, North Carolina). — Levi Munson, of Wallingford, taken with the same party, was sent to England with others, but returned to Halifax, June 21, '76; exchanged later and re-ent. Cont. service in '77. — Amos Green, of Branford, was captured in Northern Dept. Oct. 20, '75, carried to Quebec and then to England, where he remained till Aug., '76. Returning to Halifax he escaped, and in the course of two months reached his home.

Asa Whitney, of Salisbury, was armorer in Northern Dept. 2 months and 20 days from about July 20, '75.

Lieut. Charles Smith, of Hebron, belonging to Capt. Hart's Co. in Col. Sergeant's Mass. Regt. "absconded" in Aug. '75.

Capt. Noah Phelps, of Simsbury, who figured in the Ticonderoga Enterprise, appears later as army "contractor" in Northern Dept.

Lieut. Luther Stoddard, of Canaan, in 4th Company of Hinman's Regt., was also Adjutant of the Regt.

Mark Mezuzan, of Branford, is paid as Quarter Master in Northern Dept. He may have filled that position in Wooster's Regt.; doubtless the same officer Qr. Mr. in Col. Moses Hazen's Cont. Regt. in '77.

B.—REGIMENTS FOR 1776.

ORGANIZATION.—The regiments called out in 1775, although adopted as Continental, constituded a provisional force. Raised by their respective colonies to meet an emergency their service was limited to short terms. Nearly all were to disband in December, when it was expected, as had usually been the case in the French and Indian war, that military operations would cease for the winter. As it was imperative, however, to continue to hem in the enemy at Boston and hold the ground gained in the Northern Department, as well as prepare generally for a determined struggle, Congress at an early date moved to organize a new force for 1776. On Sept. 26, 1775, President Hancock writing to Washington invited his attention to the following points: "The continuation of the army now under your command in the service of the Continent, after the terms of its enlistment shall have been completed; the reducing of the several corps of Provincials, which at present compose your army, into one body of Continental Forces; what number will be necessary for the winter campaign; what rations shall be allowed the men, and what further regulations may be necessary for the government of those Forces. Upon these heads the Congress wish to be favored with the result of your deliberations as soon as possible." On receipt of these instructions the Commander-in-Chief called a council of the General officers, Oct. 8th, to consider plans for "the continuance and new-modelling" of the army, when it was advised that a new force of about twenty thousand men be raised to maintain the position before Boston, and that it be enlisted for one year from Jan. 1, 1776. Congress furthermore appointed a Committee of three — Dr. Franklin, Mr. Lynch, and Col. Harrison — to repair to Headquarters at Cambridge, and consult in the matter in person with Washington and delegates from the New England Colonies. This Conference met on Oct. 18th — the Connecticut delegates being Deputy-Governor Griswold and Mr. Nathaniel Wales — and after deliberating four days accepted the conclusions of the General officers. It was agreed that, exclusive of riflemen and artillery, twenty-six regiments consisting each of seven hundred and twenty-eight men and officers, divided into eight companies, should be raised under Continental directions, to serve until Jan. 1, 1777. Connecticut's quota remained the same as before — five regiments. Her delegates expressed the opinion at the Conference that "eight thousand men may be raised in their Province to serve the next Campaign on the same terms as the present, viz.: forty shillings bounty."

On Nov. 4th, Congress adopted the report of the Conference, and Washington took steps to organize the new force. He called upon and urged the soldiers already in the field for '75 to re-enlist for another year, and new lists of field and line officers were made out under whom they were to serve. The Connecticut regiments of '75 were "remodelled" on this plan. Gen. Putnam's was given to Benedict Arnold, Gen. Spencer's continued under Col. Wyllys, and Cols. Parsons, C. Webb, and Huntington remained in command of their own as before. In the arrangement of the twenty-six regiments for '76 (afterwards increased to twenty-seven), Parsons' was numbered the 10th Continental Foot, Huntington's the 17th, C. Webb's the 19th, Arnold's the 20th, and Wyllys's the 22d. They were known as such for that year only. Many changes were made among the company officers by the promotion of deserving subalterns and non-commissioned officers, to the advantage of the commands. With few exceptions all had been in service in '75. In the absence or loss of many of the rolls for '76, it is uncertain how far the soldiers of '75 re-enlisted for '76, but references indicate that a considerable number returned, who, with recruits, filled the new regiments to a respectable strength before spring. The Connecticut Assembly, at its December session, had resolved that those soldiers "who had or should enlist into the Continental army for the ensuing campaign, should be exempt from the poll tax on the list of 1776; and also that their bodies should be exempt from arrests for debts during their tour of service."

On Jan. 1, 1776, when the re-organized army began its new term, Washington issued the following order from Headquarters at Cambridge:

"(Parole, The Congress.) (Countersign, America.)

This day giving Commencement to the new Army, which, in every point of view, is entirely Continental, the General flatters himself, that a laudable spirit of emulation will now take place, and pervade the whole of it. . . . . His Excellency hopes, that the importance of the great cause we are engaged in, will be deeply impressed on every man's mind; and wishes it to be considered, that an army without order, regularity, and discipline, is no better than a commissioned mob. Let us therefore, when every thing dear and valuable to freemen is at stake, when our unnatural parent is threatening us with destruction from every quarter, endeavour, by all the skill and discipline in our power, to acquire that knowledge and conduct which is necessary in war. Our men are brave and good; men who, with pleasure it is observed, are addicted to fewer vices than are commonly found in armies. But, it is subordination and discipline (the life and soul of an army) which, next under Providence, is to make us formidable to our enemies, honourable in ourselves, and respected in the world."

. . . . . .

In the Northern Department no similar reorganization for '76 was effected. The Conference at Cambridge decided that "so much depended upon events and particularly upon the success of the present expedition against Canada (under Montgomery and Arnold) that no probable calculation" could be made as to the number of troops necessary in that quarter. The three Connecticut regiments — Wooster's, Hinman's, and Waterbury's, which, for various causes, had been greatly reduced in numbers, returned home in December. As events developed in Canada, however,— the "expedition" being defeated — Congress, late in '75 and early in '76, authorized the enlistment of two regiments from Connecticut to serve in that department for one year. They were commanded by Cols. Charles Burrall and Samuel Elmore. In May, '76, still another regiment was called for, under Col. Andrew Ward, which joined Washington in the summer. This completed Connecticut's quota of Continental troops for '76, the same number as in '75 — eight regiments.

Service.— The five regiments in the army before Boston remained there until the enemy evacuated the place in March. In April, they marched under Washington to New York, the next field of operations, and assisted in fortifying the city and vicinity. Col. Ward's joined them in August. Four of them were on the Brooklyn side at the time of the Battle of Long Island, Aug. 27, '76, and three more or less engaged. Huntington's lost heavily in prisoners. Two or three were caught in the panic of the troops on abandoning New York, Sept. 15th. All were with the army at White Plains, Oct. 28th, and one of them, Col. Webb's, closely engaged. Portions of three were at Trenton and Princeton. In the Northern Department, under Gen. Schuyler, Col. Burrall's regiment reinforced the troops before Quebec and afterwards took post at Ticonderoga. Col. Elmore's was stationed at old Fort Stanwix on the Mohawk, and vicinity.

Knowlton's Rangers and Bigelow's Art. Co.— These commands are noticed at the end of the regiments for 1776.

Reinforcements of State and Militia troops in 1776.— These are noticed with rosters under their proper heads after the Continentals. Three militia regiments were ordered to Boston in January. Two began fortifying New York in February–March, before the arrival of the Continental troops. In June–July, Gen. Wadsworth's brigade of seven regiments (six months' men) arrived and performed considerable service. In August–September, twelve militia regiments under Gen. Oliver Wolcott served several weeks, as well as nine more from the eastern counties of the State, under Gen. Saltonstall. A few "troops of horse" were also on the ground for brief terms. The militia, and the same proved true of those coming from other colonies, while temporarily swelling Washington's army, failed to add much to its efficiency — the men being generally poorly armed and undisciplined. Later, during the war, their service was more effective; on some occasions highly important.

The following rosters for '76 are arranged from original records in the State Library, Hartford, Department of State and Pension Bureau, Washington, D. C., the Trumbull papers, Massachusetts Historical Society, Boston, and from manuscripts in private hands, supplemented with the American Archives.

BRIGADIER-GENERALS.

DAVID WOOSTER,... .....Of New Haven. Cont. from '75 as Brig.-Gen. Continental Army. Remained at Montreal until April 1, when he set out to assume command of the small force still besieging Quebec. Upon the arrival of Maj.-Gen. Thomas, ordered to the chief command in Canada, a council of officers voted to retreat from that position. Wooster returned with the troops and soon after was directed by Washington to repair to New Haven. He had been charged with incapacity, but demanding from Congress an investigation into his management of affairs in Canada, was acquitted of blame by that body. Retaining his commission as Continental Brigadier he was also re-appt. Maj.-Gen. of Conn. militia Oct. 23, '76, and in the latter capacity took post with a small State force on the Westchester border during the winter '76–'77.—Record cont. in '77, &c.

BENEDICT ARNOLD,.....Of New Haven. Soon after the defeat before Quebec, or on Jan. 10, '76, Congress promoted Col. Arnold Brig.-Gen. Continental Army.[2] On the abandonment of Canada he repaired to New Haven and in the following summer again reported in the North. Dept. to Maj.-Gen. Gates who had succeeded Schuyler. Gates put Arnold in charge of naval matters on Lake Champlain and a fleet was built to meet that of the enemy who were then assuming the offensive in that quarter. On Oct. 11 an action took place off Valcour's Island resulting in defeat of the flotilla.—Record cont. in '77, &c.

SAMUEL HOLDEN PARSONS, Of New London. As Col. of the 10th Cont. regt., Parsons marched with the army from Boston to New York in April, '76, and on Aug. 9 was prom. Brig.-Gen. Continental army. Commanded Spencer's old brigade of three Conn. and one Mass. regts. Ordered to the Brooklyn front on Aug. 24, he engaged in the battle of the 27th, being "field officer" for the day, and narrowly escaped capture. On the retreat from N. Y., Sept. 15, his brigade was swept along in the panic to Harlem Heights. After White Plains, he remained with the troops east of the Hudson.—Record cont. in '77.

NATHAN HALE.—One of the first published notices of Hale appears in the following extract from the Boston Chronicle as reprinted in the London Remembrancer in 1782. After noticing the consideration paid to André the writer proceeds:

"But while we pay the debt of humanity to our enemies, let us not forget what we owe to our friends. About four years ago, CAPT. HALE, an American officer, of a liberal education, younger than André, and equal to him in sense, fortitude, and every manly accomplishment, though without opportunities of being so highly polished, voluntarily went into the city of New York, with a view to serve his invaded country. He performed his part there with great capacity and address, but was accidentally discovered. In this trying circumstance he exhibited all the firmness of André, without the aid of a single countenance around him that spoke either respect or compassion, and though every thing that was said or done to him was adopted to make him feel that he was considered as a traitor and a rebel. André appeared great in not contesting the clear grounds upon which he was condemned, and in refusing to employ the absurd and frivolous pleas that Clinton would have put into his mouth. Hale, though not at all disconcerted, made no plea for himself, and firmly rejected the advantageous offers made him by the enemy upon condition of his entering into their service. André earnestly wished the mode of his death might have been more like that of a soldier; but consoled himself by observing, that in either way it would be 'but a moment's pang.' Hale, calm and collected, took no notice of either of those circumstances. André as he was going to die, with great presence of mind and the most engaging air, bowed to all around him, and returned the respect that had been and was still paid to him; and said: 'Gentleman, you will bear witness that I die with the firmness becoming a soldier.' Hale had received no such respects, and had none to return; but just before he expired, said, aloud: 'I am so satisfied with the cause in which I have engaged, that my only regret is, that I have not more lives than one to offer in its service.'"

COLONEL DURKEE'S REGIMENT, 1776.

20th CONTINENTAL.

[This regiment, known generally as Durkee's in the campaign of '76, was Gen. Putnam's Regt. of 1775 as reorganized for service in the Continental army for the year 1776. The regiment marched from Boston to New York in April '76, and was stationed until Sept. 15 at Bergen Heights and Paulus Hook, now Jersey City. Later it was ordered to Ft. Lee, opposite Ft. Washington, and then accompanied Washington on the retreat through New Jersey. Engaged at Battle of Trenton, Dec. 25, '76, and in part at Princeton, Jan. 3, '77, a portion of the regiment, at urgent request of Washington, continuing in service with other troops, about six weeks after expiration of their term. COLONEL ELMORE'S REGIMENT, 1776.

[This regiment was raised under authority of the Continental Congress, to serve for one year from April, 1776, and credited to Connecticut. The Colonel, Samuel Elmore, had served as Major of Hinman's Regt. in the Northern Dept. in 1775, and again as Lieut.-Col. of Wooster's provisional Regt. in the winter of '75–'76. Elmore and most of his company officers recruited their men in Connecticut and to some extent from the regiments that served in the North. Some of the officers belonged in New York and a few in Massachusetts, and men were recruited from both of those states. The regiment took the field in July, '76, under Schuyler, and on August 25th marched from Albany "into Tryon County." During the remainder of its term, it was posted at Ft. Stanwix and vicinity. It broke up at that point in the spring of '77, most of the officers and a number of the men re-entering the Continental service in the Conn., Mass., and N. Y. Lines. The following are the muster rolls of the companies as they stood on Jan. 13–15, 1777, "in Colonel Samuel Elmore's Battalion of Forces, raised in the state of Connecticut & now in the service of the United States of America."—Rev. Rolls, Pension Bureau.]

OFFICERS PRISONERS.

Capt. Peter Perritt, of Milford, in Col. Chas. Webb's Regt. '76, who had been detached "on command" to serve with the garrison at Fort Washington, New York Island, was taken prisoner at its surrender, Nov. 16, '76. Exchanged Sept. 18, '78. He had previously been appointed a Captain in the new army for '77, and upon his exchange presented himself for service, but no vacancy then existing he was regarded as a supernumerary and received pay and bounty as such. On June 21, '79, he was appointed Captain in a State Regt., to serve one year. He commanded a company of "Rangers" in the vicinity of Boston after the Lexington alarm. See p. 28.

Lieut. Joseph Hale (or Hall) is reported among the Connecticut officers taken prisoners at Ft. Washington, Nov. 16, '76, and exchanged during the war. Captain Nathan Hale had a brother Joseph Hale who was a Lieut. in Col. Andrew Ward's Regt. He may have been with the garrison in the fort and captured.

KNOWLTON'S "RANGERS," 1776.

AFTER the American defeat on Long Island, Aug. 27, '76, a small body of select troops was organized for special service along the lines and placed under the command of Lieut.-Col. Thomas Knowlton of Durkee's Conn. Regt. 20th Continental. Col. Knowlton, a veteran of the French and Indian war, had distinguished himself at Bunker Hill and in one or two subsequent exploits during the siege of Boston, and was peculiarly fitted to lead a partisan corps. The detachment in question, known as Knowlton's "Rangers," was composed of officers and men chosen from different regiments, to which they were to return when no longer needed. Knowlton appears to have selected officers whom he knew, which accounts for the large proportion from Connecticut; the men also were largely from the same state. The command was small, not over one hundred and thirty or forty. Its first service gave it no little reputation in the army. After the retreat from New York, Sept. 15, '76 — the troops in general being more or less depressed — Washington ordered Knowlton to move out early on the 16th from Harlem Heights and ascertain the position of the enemy. Knowlton marched over Bloomingdale Heights, and found the enemy's outposts somewhere along the line of 110th St. on the main road, now Broadway. A skirmish occurred and Knowlton fell back to the American lines, then stretching along 125th St. from vicinity of 8th Avenue west to the Hudson. The British Light Infantry followed him. Washington thereupon directed Knowlton to attack again, turning their right, while other troops attacked them in front and left. A successful engagement followed, the enemy being driven back over the Bloomingdale grounds with loss. In the affair, Knowlton was mortally wounded, and died during the action, greatly regretted. In General Orders of Sept. 17, Washington referred to him as "the gallant and brave Col. Knowlton who would have been an honour to any country."

Knowlton's Senior Captain — Stephen Brown, of Woodstock — succeeded to the command of the "Rangers," but in a few days returned to his regiment — Durkee's. The other captains, so far as the records indicate, were Thomas Grosvenor, of Pomfret, and Nathan Hale, of Coventry. Grosvenor seems to have retired with Brown, and Hale, the "Martyr Spy," was then absent within the enemy's lines. As the next commander of the "Rangers," Washington appointed, Oct. 1, '76, Maj. Andrew Colburn, of Nixon's Mass. Regt. He was wounded before the end of the month and retired. The command devolved thereafter upon Lieut., afterwards Captain, Lemuel Holmes, of Sargeant's Mass. Regt. Upon the withdrawal of the army to White Plains and subsequently through New Jersey, it was proposed either to disband the "Rangers" or have them accompany the main force; but Col. Robert Magaw, of Pennsylvania, then commanding at Fort Washington, on New York Island below King's Bridge, urgently requested their continuance with him as being his main dependence for the security of his outposts. They accordingly remained on the Harlem lines until Nov. 16, 1776, when Fort Washington and the entire garrison were captured by the enemy.

The "Rangers" thus disappear as prisoners. Oliver Burnham, one of the detachment — afterwards Judge Burnham, of Conn. — writing after the war, says: "We remained until the sixteenth of November in this situation ("near Harlem") when we were warmly engaged on all sides. We were about two miles below the fort and well sustained the attack until the enemy made good their landing across Harlem River, when we had hard fighting to reach the fort. Just as we had reached the gate, the flag went out and surrendered the fort and ourselves prisoners of war."

It is worth while to note that the first three commanders of this corps fell in action during the war — Col. Knowlton at Harlem Heights; Capt. Brown at Ft. Mifflin, Penn., Nov. 16, '77; Maj. Colburn, as Lieut.-Col., at Saratoga, Sept. 19, '77. Capt. Holmes, the last in command, remained a prisoner two years.

The following roll of the "Rangers" is compiled from printed and Mss. records. The list of non-commissioned officers and privates is arranged from the papers of Capt. Lemuel Holmes, now in the Pension Bureau, Washington, and includes only the names of those who were captured with him at Ft. Washington. It doubtless represents the greater part of the original detachment.

[The first artillery company raised in Connecticut during the Revolution was an independent organization commanded by Capt. John Bigelow, of Hartford. It was recruited early in 1776 and marched to the Northern Department where it appears to have been accepted as a Continental Co. Stationed during the summer and fall of '76, at Ticonderoga and vicinity. In July Capt. Bigelow was sent by direction of Congress with a special flag of truce to Burgoyne in Canada. C.—REGIMENTS, "CONNECTICUT LINE."

FORMATION OF 1777—1781.

FOLLOWING the organizations of '75 and '76 came the most important of all, known in general as the "Continental Line," raised in 1777 and continuing with modifications to the close of the war. It passed, so far as the Connecticut troops were concerned, through four formations, the first of which is noticed under the present heading, C, covering the years 1777 to 1781.

ORGANIZATION.

Regiments of the "Connecticut Line."—The experiences of the first two years of the war, especially the failure in Canada and the defeats in the campaign around New York in '76, had demonstrated that the contest could not be successfully carried on with troops enlisted for short terms. The need of a permanent, disciplined army to cope with the British "regulars" was recognized as urgent. Congress, accordingly, by resolutions of Sept. 16th, 20th, and Oct. 8th, 1776, provided for such a body. The "establishment" of the current year would disband on Dec. 31, leaving the country practically at the mercy of the enemy should they be disposed to push a vigorous winter campaign. To take the place of this out-going force it was enacted that eighty-eight infantry regiments be raised for continuous service to the end of the war unless otherwise ordered. They were proportioned among the States according to their population. Thus, Massachusetts and Virginia were to furnish each fifteen regiments, Pennsylvania twelve, New York four, Maryland and Connecticut each eight, and the rest in like ratio. As a body they were to form a grand "Continental Line," and would, so far, resemble the "Regiments of the Line" in the British establishment. They differed from the latter, however, in this respect, that instead of being numbered consecutively in the main line the regiments of each State formed a sub-division by themselves and were numbered from the "First" to the "Fifth," or the "Eighth" or the "Fifteenth," and so on, as the case might be. Each State quota thus became a "Line" in itself, which was designated by its State name. Hence, the "Massachusetts Line," the "South Carolina Line," the "Connecticut Line," &c.,—each being a distinct body, commanded by officers from its own State, and cared for by its own State, as well as by Congress. Inspired by a common cause, and welded in homogeneous form under the leadership of Washington, it was these State "Lines," facing the enemy as a single "Continental Line," that were to bear the burden of the war for the next six years and bring it to a successful close.

The organization of this new army, as such, was to date from Jan. 1, 1777. The regiments were to consist of eight companies. Soldiers could enlist for one of two terms of service—either "for three years" or "during the war." The particular terms under which the recruiting was to be conducted were published as follows in the Connecticut papers of the day:

"RECRUITING INSTRUCTIONS

For .....

You are immediately to enlist into the service of the United States of America, all able-bodied men, who are willing to enter into the service, on the following terms, viz.:

First, You are not to enlist any but Freemen, able of body and under the age of fifty, carefully avoiding all persons laboring under lameness or other defects of body prejudicial to the service; if any such or boys are brought in, the officer inlisting them will be chargeable for the expence they may be to the public.

Secondly, You are not to enlist any deserters from the army of the king of Great Britain, or persons of a disaffected or suspicious character, the American service having suffered greatly by the desertion of such persons.

Thirdly, You are to enlist to serve three years, or during the continuance of the present war between Great Britain and the American States, unless sooner discharged by proper authority.

Fourthly, The men, by you enlisted, are to be subject to the rules and articles for the government of the army, published by the Congress the 20th of September, 1776, and are to sign those articles.

As an encouragement to such persons as shall enlist into the above service, you are authorized to engage, besides the pay and provisions now allowed,

First, That every soldier shall upon being approved by a Major General, a Brigadier General, or Colonel Commandant of a Brigade, and some Surgeon, be entitled to a Bounty of Twenty Dollars and a suit of clothes, which suit of clothes shall be given annually.

Secondly, He shall also be entitled to One Hundred Acres of Land at the expiration of his term of enlistment, and in case of his death, in the service, his representatives shall be entitled thereto.

When any person is inlisted you are as soon as convenient, to take him to some person duly authorized by the above articles, to administer the oath therein prescribed.

To encourage the brave and spirited to enter into the service, the General promises them all the plunder they shall take from the enemy, to be equally divided among the officers and men, according to their pay.

Given at Head Quarters, 17th day of Dec., 1776.

By His Excellency General WASHINGTON."

The Legislature of Connecticut added some further inducements, promising to increase the soldier's pay and provide the sick and wounded with "all necessaries for their comfort and relief."

The officers for this army were selected with care. This was expressly required by the resolutions of Congress. As these officers were to be nominated by their respective State authorities and then commissioned by Congress, several of the Legislatures sent committees to Washington's army of '76, before it disbanded, to confer with the General officers and others as to proper appointments. This was done by Connecticut with the result that, with a very few exceptions, no officers were appointed for the eight regiments of the State "Line" who had not seen previous service in '75 or '76. They were largely taken from the Continental regiments of '76 and from Wadsworth's Brigade of State troops which served for six months with those regiments. As to the enlisted men the incompleteness of the rolls of the eight regiments for '76 prevents any comparison which might show what proportion continued in the new regiments. But it is known that a large number re-enlisted.

The following notice, published by John Lawrence, Esq., the State Treasurer, indicates the pressure upon the State funds at this time:

"The Treasurer of the State of Connecticut hereby notifies all constables, and collectors of the Taxes due to this State, that he expects they respectively pay off their Arrearages; otherwise he shall be obliged to issue out his Warrants indiscriminately, against those who are delinquent. . . . . The present Call for Money is so great, that notwithstanding some Taxes which are granted are not payable till May next; yet the Treasurer earnestly desires every Friend to this State to exert himself, and readily discharge said Rates, that he may be able to satisfy the generous Soldiers who have been in Defence of their Country, and likewise pay off the Battalions now raising for the same noble Purpose. Money is the Sinews of War — and to have a full Supply at this Juncture, is of the last Importance. Without Money it is impossible for us to raise a new Army, the absolute Necessity of which must be known to all. It is hoped that every one will so generously pay his Rates, and the Constables so speedily collect and settle them, that for the Future not a Single Order may be refused at this Office.

Treasury Office, January 27, 1777."

Additional Troops. — Congress, furthermore, called upon the States to recruit soldiers for the different arms, Cavalry, Artillery, &c., and also provided for the enlistment of what were known as the "additional" infantry regiments of this formation. Sixteen of these were authorized, but only thirteen were organized. Recruited at large, they came more or less under Washington's immediate supervision, and their field officers were in the main appointed by himself. Of these regiments Connecticut raised the one commanded by Washington's late aid-de-camp, Col. Samuel B. Webb, and about half of the one commanded by Col. Sherburne of Rhode Island, of which Return Jonathan Meigs was the first appointed Lieut.-Colonel. The State also contributed several companies, as appears by the rosters, to Col. Moses Hazen's regiment, sometimes called the "Canadian," recruited "at large," but not one of the sixteen mentioned above, and to Col. Seth Warner's regiment which was credited to the "Hampshire Grants." In addition companies were raised in the State for Col.

Jeduthan Baldwin's Regiment of "Artificers" and part of a company for Col. Flower's Artillery "Artificers." A majority of the men in the small but valuable corps of "Sappers and Miners" were from Connecticut, but they appear to have been detached from the regiments of the "Line."

Of the four Continental regiments of Cavalry or "Light Dragoons" raised at this time, the Second or Sheldon's was credited to Connecticut, though a few of the officers and men belonged to other States. Of the four Continental regiments of Artillery called for, the Second or Lamb's was raised largely in the State of New York. Connecticut's contribution to it consisted of the Lieut.-Colonel, Eleazer Oswald (see pp. 31, 91, n.), and four companies numbering in the aggregate one hundred and seventy men, or about one-quarter of the regimental strength. One company of Crane's First Artillery, mainly from Massachusetts, was commanded by Capt. Buckland of Hartford, and contained some of the men who originally belonged to Bigelow's Artillery Company of '76.

Inclusive of the several detachments named Connecticut's contribution to the "Continental Line" of '77–'81 consisted of about ten and a half regiments of infantry, one regiment of cavalry, and five companies of artillery.

RECORD FOR 1777.

The First Camps.—Gen. Putnam being in New Jersey during the winter and spring of '77. (after Trenton and Princeton), Gen. Wooster guarding the western end of the State, and Gens. Spencer and Arnold in Rhode Island, the business of organizing the "Connecticut Line" and pushing on the enlistments fell mainly to Gen. Parsons. By the 1st of April the recruiting had well progressed, and the men were ordered to assemble at given points and prepare to take the field. The several regiments they formed were commanded as follows during the next four years, the names of the Colonels being given as they succeeded each other by promotion:

First Regiment.	Third Regiment.	Fifth Regiment.	Seventh Regiment.
Col. Huntington, to May, '77. Col. Starr, ... '77–'81.	Col. Wyllys, . . '77–81.	Col. Bradley, . . '77–81.	Col. Swift, ... '77–'81.

Second Regiment.	Fourth Regiment.	Sixth Regiment.	Eighth Regiment.
Col. Chas. Webb, to Ap. '78. Col. Butler, . . . '78–'81.	Col. Durkee, . . '77–'81.	Col. Douglas, . May, '77. Col. Meigs, . . '77–'81.	Col. Chandler, . to Mar. '78. Col. Russell, . '78 to Oct. '79. Col. Sherman, . . '79 to '78.

"Additional" Regiment.	Second Dragoons.
Col. Samuel B. Webb, . . . '77–81.	Col. Sheldon, ...'77–83.

In the fall of '80 Col. Samuel B. Webb's regiment was annexed to the "Connecticut Line" as the 9th Regt. The 1st Regt. during the greater part of '77 and '78 was known as Prentice's, that officer being its Lieut.-Colonel in command before Col. Starr took charge. The 8th Regt. also was known by the name of its Lieut.-Colonel, Mead, who commanded during the spring and summer of '78.

On April 14, '77, Gen. Parsons, in published orders, directed Huntington's and Durkee's regiments to rendezvous at Norwich, Wyllys's at Hartford, Douglas's at New Haven, Swift's at New Milford, Chas. Webb's, Bradley's, and Chandler's at Danbury, S. B. Webb's at Wethersfield, and Lieut.-Col. Meigs, with the half of Sherburne's regiment under his command, at Middletown. From these points the troops were ordered to march to Peekskill, N. Y., as soon as possible. On account of its central location on the Hudson, Peekskill had been designated as the encampment for nearly all the New England and New York troops then taking the field, and by the middle of July several brigades had assembled there. In the early part of the season Maj.-Gen. McDougall commanded at that point, but was relieved about July 1st by Maj.-Gen. Putnam. Nearly all the Connecticut infantry mentioned above, together with a few companies of Dragoons under Lieut.-Col. Blagden and of artillery under Lieut.-Col. Oswald reported at Peekskill during the summer. The regiments were assigned to brigades, but many changes were made, and it was not until a year later that the permanent organization of the "Connecticut Line" into one division of two brigades under Gens. Parsons and Huntington respectively, was effected.

Danbury Raid and Sag Harbor Expedition. — While the regiments were thus organizing and going into camp, the enemy under Tryon attempted their expedition against Danbury, April 25–28, '77. Among the Continental officers present who led troops against them were Gen. Wooster, mortally wounded, Gen. Arnold, Col. Lamb, Col. Huntington, Col. Bradley, and others. The troops on the ground were mainly militia, but casualties are reported in Wyllys's and Bradley's Continentals. The regiments of the "Line" appear not to have been available just at that time — a fact of which Tryon was doubtless aware. Some were at Peekskill and others scattered at points of rendezvous unarmed. The record of the militia under Gen. Silliman and others appears under its proper head.

Tryon's incursion was offset three weeks later by a dash made by Lieut.-Col. Meigs at the enemy's stores at Sag Harbor, L. I. Gen. Parsons having authorized and encouraged the expedition, Meigs selected one hundred and seventy men from the rendezvous at New Haven, and leaving Guilford on May 23d in thirteen whale boats, struck across the Sound, marched rapidly to Sag Harbor, burned twelve vessels and a large quantity of hay, took ninety prisoners, and returned without the loss of a man. Congress voted Col. Meigs a sword for his successful exploit. The Colonel as well as Gen. Parsons soon after reported in the field at Peekskill.

Brandywine and Germantown. — The campaign of '77 was inaugurated by the enemy. Burgoyne approaching from the North and Howe aiming at Philadelphia called for a cautious distribution of the American forces. As soon as the British plans were clearly developed the Peekskill camp was denuded of its troops. The New York and Massachusetts regiments were sent to Schuyler and Gates, and six of the nine Connecticut regiments with the two from Rhode Island were ordered at different times to Washington's main army in Pennsylvania. The Connecticut "Line" remained intact at Peekskill, engaging occasionally in expeditions towards King's Bridge, until after the American defeat at Brandywine, Sept. 11, '77, when Washington directed Putnam to send him reinforcements. Putnam at once dispatched Durkee's, Bradley's, Swift's, and Chandler's regiments, under Gen. McDougall, who duly reported to Washington. His command arrived in time to participate in the battle of Germantown, Oct. 4. It was assigned to Greene's Division on the left flank of the entire line, and in action encountered the enemy's Light Infantry. The course of the battle at this point appears to have been the same as at all points throughout the line. In the initial attack Washington gained ground, but the murky atmosphere and the unfortunate diversion at the Chew House compelled a retreat. One of the Connecticut officers, probably Chandler, reported the result to Gov. Trumbull very briefly thus:

"The retreat in general was safe and good. The army is now returned to the old encampment, our Brigade being on one of the flanks. As to the killed and wounded Returns are now making up; it will not exceed 500. For my Regt. 22 killed, &c., Durkey's & Swift's much short, Bradley's something more." — [Trumbull Papers.]

Gens. Varnum and Huntington were also ordered to Washington's army, but did not arrive until after the battle. They brought the Rhode Island regiments and the 1st Conn., then known as Prentice's. On the 16th of October, in rearranging the troops, Washington assigned McDougall to the command of the new division composed of Varnum's and Huntington's brigades, as follows:

McDougall's Division, Penn. '77.

Gen. Varnum,	Greene's Regt.,	R. I.	Gen. Huntington,	Prentice's Regt.,	Conn.
	Angell's "	R. I.		Bradley's "	Conn.
	Durkee's "	Conn.		Swift's "	Conn.
	Chandler's "	Conn.

Respecting the battle of Brandywine, preceding Germantown — no Eastern troops were at that time with Washington as separate corps. Major Tallmadge, with a detachment of the 2d Dragoons, had been moving with the army, but was not actively engaged on that occasion. The Connecticut company in Col. Moses Hazen's Regt. took part in the action, and its Captain, Jeremiah Parmelee, of New Haven, received a wound from the effects of which he died in the following spring. He had served in the Northern Department from the opening of the war. Several if not all the State's companies in Baldwin's corps of Artificers were also on the field.

Fort Mifflin, Mud Island, Penn. — After Germantown, Washington made an effort to command the Delaware below Philadelphia — the city being occupied by the enemy — and for a time succeeded. It furnished the occasion for a brave and spirited defence of the two American forts on opposite sides of the river. On the left bank Col. Greene, of Varnum's Brigade, repulsed the determined attack of Donop on Ft. Mercer. At Ft. Mifflin, Mud Island, on the right bank, Col. Smith, of Maryland, tenaciously held his ground against the overwhelming fire from the enemy's shipping. Exhaustion and a wound, however, compelled him to retire, and it also became necessary to relieve the greater part of the devoted garrison. It fell to Varnum's Brigade to furnish the relief, which consisted of detachments from Durkee's and Chandler's companies, under Lieut.-Col. Giles Russell of the latter regiment. This change took place on the 12th of November, '77. Russell, a veteran of four campaigns in the French and Indian war, in one of which he was wounded, and whom Varnum reports as a sensible and excellent officer, was "totally destitute of health," and soon requested to be relieved. Maj. Thayer, of Rhode Island, succeeded him as volunteer, and the garrison under his direction continued its remarkable defence under a still closer and more effective fire from the British ships. On the 16th, further resistance being out of the question, the ruined fort was abandoned. The Connecticut detachment, which bore the brunt of the bombardment, suffered seriously. "We have lost some gallant officers and men," wrote Gen. Huntington to Governor Trumbull, and he specially mentioned Capt. Stephen Brown, one of Knowlton's favorite officers in the "Rangers" of the previous year. This officer was killed by a round shot from one of the enemy's ships, and Capt. Nathan Stoddard, of Chandler's, suffered the same fate in a similar way.

Washington soon after withdrew towards Valley Forge.

Putnam on the Hudson. — The Burgoyne Campaign. — So many regiments had been ordered from the Peekskill camp to report to Gates on the upper Hudson or to Washington in Pennsylvania, that on Oct. 1, '77, Gen. Putnam had but one Continental brigade at his command. This was Parsons', which consisted of the three remaining regiments of the Connecticut "Line," namely, Wyllys's, Chas. Webb's, and Meigs', together with Samuel B. Webb's and Sherburne's "additional." A considerable body of militia was on its way from Connecticut to reinforce him.

The enemy under Sir Henry Clinton at New York moved up the Hudson in October to attempt the relief of Burgoyne. With his superior force and under cover of boats and shipping Clinton was able to deceive Putnam as to his line of advance — whether on the east or west side of the river — and by a rapid move attacked and captured Forts Clinton and Montgomery. Subsequently Kingston was burned. Putnam fell back, marching up the Hudson, and was prepared to interpose himself between Clinton and Gates, reinforcing the latter in case the former persisted in his original design. Clinton, however, returned to New York, and Putnam resumed his position at Peekskill. In the spring of '78 a Court of Inquiry, consisting of Gens. McDougall and Huntington and Col. Wigglesworth, of Mass., investigated the causes of the loss of the two forts mentioned above, and exonerated Gen. Putnam.

In the movements against Burgoyne no Continental infantry from Connecticut took part, her nine regiments having been engaged under Washington and Putnam. One company of Sheldon's Dragoons, under Capt. Thomas Y. Seymour, had been detached to Gen. Gates' force; otherwise Connecticut was represented on that field by militia, as noticed under that head. Two of the militia regiments — Cook's and Latmer's — did excellent service during the campaign.

Whitemarsh, Penn. — After Burgoyne's surrender Washington called for more troops from the northern camps. From Parsons' Connecticut Brigade Col. Chas. Webb's regiment was detached. It set out Nov. 14, '77, and on Dec. 8 engaged in a brisk action with enemy at Whitemarsh, Penn., in which two young Lieutenants and a number of men were killed and wounded. Not properly supported by the militia the few Continental troops were compelled to fall back, leaving the ground in the enemy's hands.

RECORD FOR 1778.

Winter at Valley Forge, '77–'78. — Col. Chas. Webb's Regt. appears to have been attached to Huntington's brigade, so that McDougall's Division as it went into quarters at Valley Forge consisted of the two Rhode Island regiments and the six regiments of the Connecticut "Line" commanded by Cols. Durkee, Bradley, Swift, Chandler, C. Webb, and the 1st Regt. under Lieut.-Col. Prentice. They remained with the main army through that memorable winter. The towns of the State sent some contributions of clothes, but the suffering of the soldiers was for a time extreme. As spring opened they recovered their spirits and fell to drilling under Steuben's new tactics.

Battle of Monmouth. — From Valley Forge Washington moved out in June '78 to follow the enemy in their withdrawal from Philadelphia to New York. Overtaking them near Monmouth Court House, N. J., June 28, he forced and won the well-known battle of that name. As a reminiscence of the victory there is preserved in MSS. the following order issued by Gen. Huntington to his own regiments on the morning of the engagement:

"Brigade Orders, June 28, above English Town where the Troops were formed to march to Freehold.

Officers & N. Com. offr will speak to their men and make themselves known to their respective Commands. The men to observe their file Leaders, & right and left hand men that they may know their places.

Capt. Converse is to act, on the present occasion as assistant Brigade Major, & is to be obeyed accordingly.

The officers will as far as consistent with their particular commands, have regard to the commands of Superior officers & supply vacancies as may be needful.

Gen. Huntington has the fullest confidence in the Bravery and abilities of his officers and Men — doubts not they will preserve a cool & determined spirit, and confiding in the Justice of their cause, and in the God of Heaven, they will gain honor to themselves and their Country." [Order Book N. Y. Hist. Soc.]

Huntington's Brigade appears to have formed part of the main line after Lee's repulse, but the other brigade of the Division, Varnum's, which in Gen. Varnum's absence in R. I. was commanded by Col. Durkee, was pushed to the front. It engaged the enemy and in addition to losses in action became greatly exhausted through much marching and counter marching under Lee's orders. The heat of the day was excessive. Durkee was wounded in the hand and later in the day Lieut.-Col. Russell, of the 8th Regt., commanded the Brigade.

Camp at White Plains. — From Monmouth Washington moved to White Plains, N. Y., and encamped near Chatterton Hill and the old battle ground of '76. There he remained until late in the fall when the troops went into winter quarters at different points. At White Plains Washington was joined by all the Continental regiments stationed at West Point and along the Hudson under Putnam and Gates, and could thus present a powerful front. It was the largest force of regular troops brought together in a single encampment during the war — a veritable "Continental Line" composed of the greater part of the various "Lines" from New Hampshire to North Carolina, that of New Jersey excepted which was then stationed in its own State. The Rhode Island "Line" with Glover's Mass. and S. B. Webb's and the "additional" regiments were soon ordered to Rhode Island. With these omissions the White Plains army was arranged in the following ORDER OF BATTLE.

FIRST LINE.

N. H. | Mass. | Mass. — Maj.-Gen. Gates.

Mass. | N. C. — Maj.-Gen. McDougall.

2d Md. | 1st Md. — Maj.-Gen. DeKalb.

SECOND LINE.

2d Conn. | 1st Conn. — Maj.-Gen. Lincoln.

N. Y. | 2d Pa. | 1st Pa. — Maj.-Gen. Sterling.

GEN. WASHINGTON,
COMMANDER IN-CHIEF.

It was at this camp, White Plains, that the two Connecticut brigades were organized as they subsequently stood, until Jan. 1, 1781. The assignment of the regiments was as follows:

CONNECTICUT DIVISION, '78–'81.

First Brigade. BRIG.-GEN. PARSONS.		Second Brigade. BRIG.-GEN. HUNTINGTON.

Battle of Rhode Island. — Major-Generals Greene, Sullivan, and Lafayette (Heath being then at Boston and Arnold commanding at Philadelphia) had been ordered with the troops to Rhode Island, and on Aug. 29, '78, fought a well-sustained battle with the enemy. Col. S. B. Webb's Connecticut Regt., under Lieut.-Col. Livingston and Maj. Huntington, and Sherburne's Regt., were among the commands immediately engaged.

Arrangement of Officers at White Plains, N. Y., '78. — Many disputes as to precedence in rank having arisen since the formation of the "Continental Line," Congress appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Roger Sherman, Read, and Bannister, to repair to army headquarters and adjust the various claims. Orders were issued to all officers concerned to present their cases, those from Connecticut being notified as follows:

"White Plains, Aug. 29, '78.

Cols. Wyllys, Bradley, Swift, and Meigs are app^t to settle the relative Ranks of the Lt.-Cols., Majors & Captains in the Conn. Line. They are to meet at Col. Wyllys's marque at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and make their report to the committee of arrangements at Hd. Qrs."

This was known as the "Arrangement of Nov. 15, '78"—the various claims not being finally settled until that date. New commissions were issued under this arrangement, and in the case of the "Connecticut Line" the lists of the several regiments as prepared for Roger Sherman have been followed in the rosters of the first formation, '77–'81. No change was made in the regiments.

Winter Quarters at Redding. — Breaking up the grand camp at White Plains Washington distributed the troops into winter quarters. The greater part he stationed under his immediate command at Middlebrook, N. J. West Point was garrisoned by Massachusetts men. The Connecticut Division with the New Hampshire Brigade and Hazen's regiment took post at Redding. Under orders of Oct. 22, '78, the division was to leave White Plains the next morning at 7 o'clock under the Command of Maj.-Gen. McDougall. Nixon's Mass. brigade marched with it, but kept on to Hartford. On Oct. 25, the division reached New Milford and was directed to go into camp "in the woods of Benjamin Buckingham." It was called "Camp Second Hill," and there the troops remained until Nov. 19, when they marched to Redding. About Dec. 1 Gen. Putnam assumed command (Gen. McDougall going to Peekskill), and the division settled into log huts for the winter.

RECORD FOR 1779.

Redding. Putnam at Horseneck. Mutiny. — From the camp at Redding detachments were occasionally sent out to watch the enemy, and posts were kept up on the Sound. On Dec. 5, '78, Gen. Parsons is reported with a party at Horseneck and in Feb. '79 he was there again looking after the guards. In the latter part of the month Putnam was at the same place endeavoring to repel a superior force of the enemy under Tryon, and at this time occurred his famous ride down the stone steps at Horseneck. An authoritative account of this and other incidents of camp life at Redding appears in Humphreys' "Life of Putnam"—Humphreys being Putnam's Aid-de-camp at the time.

On the 30th of Dec. '78, the men of Gen. Huntington's Brigade assembled under arms, determined to march to Hartford and demand of the Legislature redress of grievances. Gen. Putnam immediately rode down to their quarters and demanded by whose orders they were paraded. They replied that they had been suffering from want of blankets and clothes, that their pay was nothing, and that all engagements with them should be made good. Putnam addressed them kindly and firmly and they dispersed to their huts, remaining quiet through the season. Putnam's report of the affair, date Jan. '79, appears in the MSS. "Trumbull Papers."

In the Highlands.—In May '79, the Connecticut Division was ordered into the field on the Hudson, and early in June it encamped in the Highlands opposite West Point. Three strong works had been begun on high ground there known as the "North," "Middle," and "South" Redoubts on which the troops continued work. Maj.-Gen. Heath, of Massachusetts, was assigned to the Continental force on the east side of the river consisting of the Conn. "Line" and a division of Mass. troops under Gen. Robert Howe. Gen. Putnam had been assigned to the command of the right wing of the army, on the west side of the river, headquarters at Smith's Clove. It included the Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania Divisions. Before leaving quarters at Redding he issued the following order, May 27, '79:

"Maj. General Putnam being about to take command of one of the Wings of the Grand Army, before he leaves the Troops who have served under him the winter past, thinks it his Duty to Signify to them his entire approbation of their Regular and Soldier like Conduct, and wishes them (wherever they may happen to be out) a Successful and Glorious Campaign."

Tryon's Invasion of Connecticut.—On July 5, '79, Tryon began his depredations by attacking and "invading" New Haven and burning and pillaging the towns of Fairfield, Norwalk, and Greenwich. The defence of these places was left to the militia. When word, however, reached Washington he immediately ordered the Connecticut Division to march towards the coast with all possible speed and assist in repelling the enemy should they continue their ravages. Gen. Heath's orders on the occasion were as follows:

"AFTER DIVISION ORDERS,
MANDEVILLE'S, July 10, '79.

Genl. Parsons & Huntingtons Brigades are to be ready to march to morrow morning. If the heavy baggage is now in places of safety it is to be left, otherwise it is to be sent away to some place of security. The men are to draw two Days provision which they are to carry with them. The Commissarys will take on as much Bread, salt meat & flour as they have Teams to transport. The Brigade Q. M^rs. will arrange the Waggons agreeable to the Regulations & the Waggon Masters will see that they observe their order.—Genl Parsons' Brigade to strike, pack & load their tents as early as possible & move on & join Genl Huntington's who are to remain at their present post ready to march when the junction is formed. The guards & Light Infantry to join their Respective Brigades at Reveille beating. The troops to march as little encumbered as possible."

The Division marched as directed; but Tryon having sailed off, it missed an opportunity of defending its own State. Detachments from Butler's and Wyllys's regiments in Parsons' leading Brigade skirmished with the enemy near Norwalk.

Storming of Stony Point.—Returning to its position on the Hudson, the Division was called upon for its proportion of companies for a Light Infantry Corps to be commanded by Gen. Anthony Wayne. This body was composed of four regiments of about four hundred officers and men each, all of whom were selected for special service. The Connecticut Division contributed one full regiment under Col. Return Jonathan Meigs, the Mass. Division another, and the right wing of the army, including the Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina troops, completed the other half of the Corps. On the night of July 15, '79, Wayne assaulted and carried Stony Point (which the enemy had occupied in May) with such skill, dash, and completeness as to win praises even from the enemy themselves. The British lost seven hundred prisoners, with many killed and wounded, while the casualties in Wayne's Corps were comparatively small. For the organization of Meigs' regiment and further details see roster toward the end of present formation of 1777–1781.

Camp "Robinson's Farm."—After demolishing the works, Wayne's Corps abandoned Stony Point, and not long after the enemy re-occupied the position. The American army remained as before in the vicinity of West Point. On the east side in Heath's wing the Connecticut Division was stationed at Camp "Robinson's Farm"—later the scene of Arnold's treason—and there the troops continued work on the "North" and "Middle" redoubts, and engaged in daily drills. Some of the orders issued at this camp are of interest. Thus Division Orders for Aug. 20, '79:

"Brigadier Genl. Huntington directs that in future the Drum is not to beat on marching parties of Fatigue to or from Work, but that they march with Musick of the Fife only, as the Drum, tho' a noble Instrument of War like Musick, is designed more particularly for signals to Regulate duty and marches with arms."

Wing Orders, Mandeville's, Sept. 3, '79:

"Six men acquainted with blowing & spliting rocks are to be selected from the Connecticut Line for that service — they are to be daily employed in clearing the bomb proofs in the Middle & North redoubts until that business is Compleated under the Superintendency of Capt. Starr of the 6th Conn^t Regt. who is appointed to that duty."

Maj. Throop and Capt. Eliphalet Holmes, of the 1st Regt., were detailed to superintend the works in general.

"October 21, 1779.

A subaltern & 20 men from the Conn^t Line to be ordered to the fatigue party under the Direction of Col. Kosciosko near St. Antonae Nose" . . .

Wing orders for Oct. 22d read as follows:

"It is with particular satisfaction the Major General [Heath] Beheld the Regularity & soldierlike behaviour of the Troops of the Connecticut Line at Exercise yesterday & he has the pleasure to acquaint them that the Baron Steuben the Inspector Genl. publickly acknowledged that they have made as great proficiency in performing the Exercise and manouvres as any Troops without exception in the Army.— A few things only Remain to be Learnt & practiced to make them finished Soldiers, & the Mag^r Genl. flaters himself that by the attention of the officers and ready obediance of the Soldiers these will soon be acquired."

Steuben, however, was a rigid disciplinarian, and on another occasion, in a formal report, he very sharply criticised nearly all the troops in the army, being as severe upon the Connecticut Division as any. Where praise was merited he gave it, as in the case of Col. S. B. Webb's Regt. which he had lately inspected in Rhode Island.

"This Regt.," he reports, "is divided into 7 comp^s & is too weak to form a batallion, the only fault I find with the Regt.—it being for the first Review the best in order of any Regt. in the Army. Their arms are a model. The officers take the greatest pains with their men. The Regt. marches perfectly, and has truly a military air. Maj^r Huntington who commands the Regt. deserves particular attention for the superior order in which he has kept the Regt. The officers have not yet received their Commissions & I cannot but interest myself for a Corps who have so eminently distinguished themselves."

Camp at Peekskill, '79. — About Oct. 21 the enemy destroyed and abandoned their posts at Stony and Verplanck's Points. The Connecticut Line was accordingly ordered to move down the river to the vicinity of King's Ferry which thus passed into American hands again. Maj. Walbridge, of the Second Regt., "with the village picket" was the first to re-occupy Verplanck's. The change of camp was made under Wing orders of Oct. 26:

"The Connecticut Division is to march early to morrow morning and encamp at below Peekskill. The Reveille to be considered as the General; the Assembly to beat at half past 8 o'clock in the 1st Brigade & the Brigade to march immediately. — The Assembly to beat at 9 o'clock in the 2nd Brigade and the Troops to march as soon as possible. The first Brigade will halt at the Village until the 2nd comes up when they are to join & march to their new camp in Division.

150 men properly officered are to be left under the command of Major Throop [Fourth Regt.] for the purpose of Compleating the Redoubts on the Heights. The fascine parties are also to be left . . . Major Throop will endeavor to have the works Compleated as soon as possible and report when they are finished."

Details from the Division under direction of Col. Gouvion, engineer, proceeded to repair the works evacuated by the enemy; the troops, also, in fitting up their new quarters levied on the straw of the neighborhood, calling forth Orders for the Second Brigade as follows, October 27:

"The commanding officer of the Brigade is very much surprised after repeated orders have been given against a wanton destruction of private property to have Complaints of that kind so soon after coming on the Ground. He does in the most pointed and positive manner forbid anything of the kind & is determined to punish every transgression of the kind with the utmost severity. Commanding officers of the Regts. are required immediately to make strict search in their respective Regiments for the article of wheat and confine every man with any found, and order the wheat back where it was taken."

For the 29th of October, Wing Orders read:

. . . "General Parsons will please to order such guards & Picquets as may be necessary for the Security of the Camp between Verplank's point & the New Bridge on Croton River.

The Major General desires the exertions of the officers of all ranks to expedite the repairs of the works at the Points — they will soon be relieved on the West side of the river by other troops.

The Connecticut Division has made great proficiency in the exercise & manœuvres. — the Major Gen'l is anxious that they not only retain what they have already acquired but that they continue their endeavours to complete themselves in Discipline; the exercise must therefore be daily attended by the troops off duty & if any Brigade cannot form a Battalion the two must join at some convenient place in the center. Lt. Col. Grosvenor will please to report what guards are mounted and where."

Wing Orders, November 3, 1779:

"Should it at any time be necessary while the Troops remain in their present encampment to make an alarm, it will be announced by the Discharge of three cannon which are to be fired by order of the Genrl at such time Commanding on the Grounds. — If the order is given to the Commanding officer of Artillery in Genrl Howe's Division he will turn the muzle of the cannon toward the Connt Division. In such Case the officer Commanding the Artillery in the first Connt Brigade will repete the alarm by the Discharge of 3 Cannon. — Should the alarm be first fired in the Connt Division it is to be repeated by Genl Howe's.

On the alarm being made the Troops will instantly parade completely ready for action, the waggoners put their horses to the waggons, and the whole be ready to execute such orders as may be given them."

. . . . . .

No boat is to pass down the River below Verplank's or Stony Point without a written pass signed by some General officer being on board.

The firing of Guns at game in the vicinity of Camp or in the river is strictly forbidden; — the officers of all guards and Picquets and the officers Commanding the guard boats will see this order strictly observed."

From Peekskill to Morristown, N. J. — As the season advanced the subject of Winter quarters engaged Washington's attention. He determined, as in the previous year, to station the greater part of his force in New Jersey, with brigades posted at West Point and the Highlands. The Connecticut Division, the whole or a portion of which had heretofore wintered east of the Hudson, was this season to encamp with the main army. In accordance with this arrangement orders were issued from Wing Head Quarters, November 17th and 18th, to break up camp at Peekskill and begin the march into New Jersey. Orders of the 18th were as follows:

. . . . . .

"The Connecticut Division to move over Hudson's River to-morrow & Camp as near Stony Point as they can find good wood and water. While the army remains at Haverstraw they are to furnish the Captains Guard at the Ferry, and General Howe's Division the other.

. . . . . .

This move to the west side of the Hudson was delayed until the 25th, when the Division crossed and encamped near Haverstraw. Gen. Heath remaining in the Highlands, the Division, with Gen. Parsons in command, came immediately under Washington's orders. On the 27th the Division encamped at night near Kakeat, on ground previously marked out by the Quartermasters. Parsons took up his quarters at Judge Cox's house. On the 28th the march was continued to Ramapaugh, and on the 29th and 30th to Persipanny. On December 1st orders read:

"The Division will march to-morrow morning to the grounds assigned for Winter quarters."

Before marching from the Highlands, Washington issued the following order, dated "Head Quarters West Point, Nov. 19, 1779," respecting the new winter quarters:

"Upon the arrival of the troops destined to quarter in New Jersey on the ground upon which they are to Hut, the space allotted for each Brigade will be pointed out by the Quarter Master Genl who will furnish a plan of the intended dimentions of the soldiers Huts, in the construction of which it is expected that a minute attention will be paid to the plan.

As conveinency, health and every good consequence will result from a perfect uniformity in the Camp, the Commander-in-Chief takes this previous opportunity of assuring that any hut not exactly conformable to the Plan or the least out of the line shall be pulled down and built again agreeable to the Model of this plan. The Commanding officers of Brigades will pay strict attention to this order."

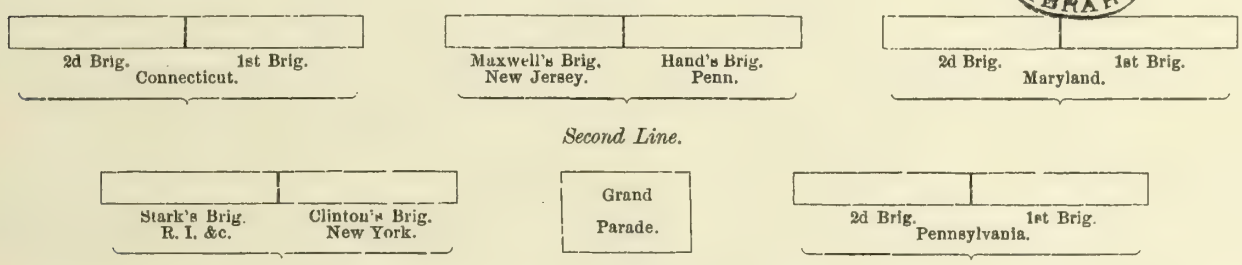
Winter-Quarters, Morristown. — The Connecticut Division was assigned to grounds below Morristown. A young Windham County schoolmaster, Ebenezer Fitch, describes the site as follows — date, Jan. 4, '80:

"Week before last I visited the camp, and had the pleasure of seeing many old and some dear friends. I found the Log-house city on the declivity of a high hill, three miles south of Morristown. There the Connecticut line dwells in tabernacles like Israel of old. And there the troops of the other States lie, some at a greater and some at a less distance among the hills in similar habitations."

Lieut.-Col. Sumner, of the Fourth Regiment, superintended the construction of the huts for the Division. The grand parade of the army was to be "in the field between the Pennsylvania & York encampments," and the following, under Washington's orders of December 17th, was to be regarded as the general line of battle:

MORRISTOWN ENCAMPMENT, 1779–1780.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY



Hut building, camp duties, and details, was the daily routine through December. On one day a sergeant and twelve men are sent to Pluckamin to cut wood for the Hospital; again, a corporal's guard to the forage yard at Vealtown; another to the White House to look after commissary stores, etc. How men were disciplined for minor offences in camp appears from the following regimental order issued by Capt. Brigham, then commanding the Eighth Regt., dated Dec. 31, 1779:

"At a Regimental Cort Martial helde by order of Captn Brigham Dec. 31 — Captn Comstock Pres.^dent: — Tried James Foster & John Frame of Captn Hodge's Co. for absenting themselves from Camp 2 days without Liberty:—

Plead guilty of being absent 2 Days but slept in camp each night.

The Cort after considering their crime Do sentence them to receive 10 Lashes each on their naked Backs. But as Frame is now confin'd for his first offence, and the Cort having a view to the Wound the Whip inflicts on the character of a young soldier do recommend it to the officer Commanding the Regt. to forgive him and reminde him of the Evil consequences of such Company & Conduct.

The Com^dant Approves of the Judgment of the Court and Directs that y^t Part respecting James Foster be put in Execution this evening at Role Call. — But having the most tender feeling for the correction of a young soldier is induced to Pardon John Frame, But earnestly Recommends it to him in future to Shun all bad company and not be guilty of a like offence againe."

RECORD FOR 1780.

The Morristown Huts. Severe Winter. — Hardly had the troops completed their huts before a winter of unusual severity set in — the most trying experienced during the Revolution. It was long known as the famous winter of 1780, when cold, hunger, and want of clothing caused the greatest suffering among the troops. The distress is described in letters from camp. Major Huntington, of Col. S. B. Webb's Regiment, in Stark's Brigade on the second Line, writes under date of December 24, 1779:

". . . You will by the date perceive that we are in camp, tho' expect, if good weather, to have the men's Hutts so far compleated that they may go into them on Sunday or Monday. The officers' Hutts are not begun, nor will they be meddled with till after the men have finished theirs. The severity of the weather hath been such that the men have suffer'd much without shoes and stockings, and working half leg deep in snow. . . ."

Capt. Joseph Walker, of the same Regiment, writing under date February 6, 1780, says:

". . . I left the Reg^t the 21st day of last month and am happy to say in much better circumstances at that time than they had been for weeks before. Our situation in regard to Provision was such I never wish to see again. Short commons ever ought to be avoided & when it cannot the consequences are to be dreaded in the army — that you know. However I can with pleasure inform you (& what I think will give you no small satisfaction), that the Lads bore it with the greatest patience and fortitude. We considered the severity of the season, the difficulty of transportation, and were willing to make all allowance possible.

. . . . . .

"After our long march [from Peekskill] you may well think our men were rather destitute of cloathing; after our arrival we began and completed our Hutts which destroyed our cloathing still more & to my certain knowledge we had not more than Fifty men in the Reg^t return^d fit for duty, — many a good Lad with nothing to cover him from his hips to his toes save his Blanket. . . ."

Assistant Commissary of Purchases, Royal Flint, described the situation as follows to Governor Trumbull:

"MORRISTOWN, Jan'y 6, 1780.

". . . The distress of the army for several days past hardly admits of a description. It is a melancholy fact that the troops, both officers and men, have almost perished for want of provisions. In many instances the extremity has been so severe as to prompt them to commit depredations on the property of the inhabitants. This sudden calamity was occasioned by the early commencement and unusual rigor of the winter, attended by heavy and repeated falls of snow. By these obstructions transportation was so delayed that the magazines in the vicinity were exhausted before relief could be drawn from the more distant resources. In this unfortunate situation the Commander-in-Chief has been compelled to lay the Contiguous Country under a contribution, obliging the inhabitants to furnish a certain quantity of provisions within a special time. This expedient, however, is only to produce a temporary succour, and will cease its operation as soon as the ordinary chanells of supply are open. I think there is a tolerable prospect of flour from the Southern States, but our principal dependence for meat, as heretofore, rests on Connecticut. As Col. Champion has expressed his fears of not continuing the supplies, I am persuaded your Legislature will consider a circumstance that merits their attention. The most material obstruction in his way is the want of cash, and I feel no probability of a speedy and adequate remedy to this evil from the Continental Treasury. I must therefore request your Excellency to represent our circumstances to your Legislature, and I am convinced they have both ability and inclination to adopt regulations suitable to our exigencies. Your state has exhibited too many proofs of its attachment to the army to make me doubt of its aid on the present occasion."

From Morristown to the Out-posts. Gen. St. Clair Commanding.—Toward the beginning of February Washington found it necessary to strengthen the "lines" or outposts in the vicinity of Elizabeth and Newark, and the Connecticut Brigades were detached for that duty. The first order they received, dated Headquarters, near Morristown, Feb. 1, 1780, read in brief:

. . . . . .

"The Connecticut Division to be held in perfect readiness to march at the shortest notice."

The Division at this time was temporarily under the command of General Arthur St. Clair, of Pennsylvania, both Gens. Parsons and Huntington, with many other officers of the army, being absent sick or on furlough. St. Clair had for some time been in command of the advanced parties, and it was at his suggestion that a full Division was ordered down to reinforce him. The move to the outposts was made on February 3d under the following order of the 2d:

"The Division will march to-morrow morning at 7 o'clock with two days' Provisions Cook'd.—The Brigade Qr. Masters will provide Carriages to transport such baggage as may be necessary & apply to the Command^ts of Brigades for direction. A Subaltern from each Brigade to remain in Camp with those who are unable to march, to take charge of the Hutts and such baggage as may be left."

On the 3d the Division was at Springfield—orders as follows:

"A Detachm^t from the Connec^t Line to parade to-morrow morning at Sunrise near the Meeting House with four Days Provisions. Maj. Throop will be the field officer of the Command."

Division orders, February 5th:

"The 1st Brigade will march to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock to Westfield—to parade at the Meeting House. Those men of the 2^d Brigade who have been on Command with Col. Gray & now at Westfield will join their Brigade at this Post. Camp Guards will be mounted this evening & Patrole the Streets & no Soldier to be out of Quarters after 9 o'clock. In case of an alarm the Troops will parade at the Meeting House."

Orders, Second Brigade, Colonel Isaac Sherman commanding, Westfield, N. J., February 5, 1780:

"In case of an Alarm the Troops will Parade at the Meeting House. It is desir'd that both officers & men be particularly attentive & that no one is absent from Quarters after 7 in the evening.

Till further orders, the Troops will lie upon their arms every night, Parade at 4 in the Morning & Continue Paraded till Sun-Rise in front of their Quarters. The Commission'd officers will Quarter Contiguous to the men & a N. C. officer with each particular squad at quarters.

To Parade this evening as soon as may be at Tremble's House below Esqr Miller's 1 C, 1 S, 1 S, 2 C, 24 P to Reinforce the Guard at Raway; except a Corporal & 4 of them to be Posted on the Road between Raway & Westfield at James Norris's House; to Patroll for giving notice of an alarm: also a Corp^l & 6 men at John Little's Tavern to Patrole in front of the Troops Quarters towards Woodbridge & Amboy.

An officer to visit the quarters of the men at night & see that they comply with the above orders. The 8th Reg^t to keep a Centinel below Lt. Benton's Quarters to give notice in case of alarm."

Division orders, Springfield, February 16th:

"A corporal & six men to be sent to the Mountain [Orange] to take charge of a piece of ordnance. He will call on Mr. Caldwell at Springfield who will give him directions respecting the fixed signals to proclaim an alarm."

Baron DeKalb Commanding. — Division Orders, Springfield, March 2, 1780:

"The Baron DeKalb in Relieving Genl St. Clair at this Post finds himself happy in the satisfaction Genl St. Clair express'd to him of the good order of Discipline & Vigilance of the Officers & men of this Division. The Baron has no doubt of their continuance therein. He is of opinion that all the Dispositions made by Genl. St. Clair by his order issued 3d [4th] of Feb.y ought to be observ'd with no other difference than that the Genl Rendevous should be at Springfield instead of Westfield — the reason of covering the Forage at Quibbletown being remov'd with the magazine & Springfield being much nearer Morristown and in the Centre of the line."

Division Orders, Springfield, March 8th:

"Those Parties which Patrole to Amboy, are not to be sent to that Place, while the Commissioners for the exchange of Prisoners are sitting there, as it is to be considered a neutral Place till the Business is finished. —

The officer Commanding the Guard from which they are furnish'd will govern himself accordingly."

"D. O. March 10, 1780.

As there is no flour to be had at present — the Roads being bad renders it impossible to transport it — the issuing Commissarys of the Connecticut Division are till further orders to issue 1 ℔ ½ of good Indian meal instead of Ration of flour."

Brigade Orders, Second Brigade, Westfield, March 18, 1780:

"As it is probable that the Enemy intend a movement this way soon the Command^t desires the troops to assemble every morning at 4 o'clock on their Regimental parade & continue under arms until Sun Rise: — the men are always to have their packs neatly done up and to parade with them. As it is of importance that the troops should be as compact as possible the Regimental Qr. Mrs. are desired to inspect the Quarters of the men and Report to the Command^t what numbers Can be Conveniently Quartered at each house, having regard to the families & those houses nighest the Meeting House."

DeKalb to the Connecticut Division. — Springfield, N. J., April 3, 1780:

"Major General the Baron de Kalb is relieved by Brig. General Huntington.

The Baron returns his warmest thanks and acknowledgments to the Connecticut Division for their Constant zeal & vigilance for the security of the Lines, their orderly Behaviour in regard to the Inhabitants & their Readiness & truly military spirit manifested in everything Concerning the service."

General Huntington in Command. Recruiting the "Line." — During the spring and summer of 1780 the term of the "three years" men, enlisted in 1777, expired, and measures were taken to fill their places. Some were induced to re-enlist, but it became necessary to call for levies for nine months to fill the depleted ranks. Lists of these levies are appended to the several regiments in the rosters. Division Orders, April 2d, are as follows:

"As many of the Companies are small & some of them without officers, commanding officers of Regts & Brigades will cause two or three companies to be joined together for the present: — All the Capt^ns & Sub^ns except one to each company, so joined, are desired to repair to Connec^t on the Recruiting service; to observe such Directions as they shall receive from Governor Trumbull.

. . . . . .

Commanding officers of Brigades will if possible quarter their troops in fewer houses nearer together. All the men are to be furnished with 40 rounds each, & are to be Daily examined. Conductors are to keep the Complement good from time to time.

Captn Alden of the 2^d Regt. is app^t Aid de Camp to Genl Huntington, to be obeyed accordingly."

Division After-Orders, April 7, 1780:

"The Genl Assembly of the State of Connecticut anxiously desirous of engaging for the war those old and faithful servants whose Terms of Service are for three years only, have Commissioned Col^o Chandler [late of the 8th Regt.] to repair to Camp for that purpose. The Capt^ns and sub^ns of the Division will be pleased (if not already acquainted) to inform themselves from Col. Chandler of the Bounties & encouragements offer'd by the State besides those given by Congress: they will then invite every man, whose engagement is of shorter duration, to reinlist for the war, using their utmost influence to persuade them to comply with the earnest wishes of their Country in this respect. The Genl with pleasure makes known to the troops that the army Committee at Wethersfield have inform'd Colo. Chandler by Letter that they have made good progress in the settlement of the army accounts; that there will be a neat ballance of 50 £ good money Due to each Soldier, & that the Committee have reason to think the settlement will be speedily Completed to the satisfaction of the Army. In addition to the pecuniary consideration the Soldiers who reengage for the war may be indulged with a Furlough till the first of June next. Every Soldier will reflect that his own Safety & Freedom is involved in Defence of the Country & event of the war. The officers will make report of the success they meet with at orderly time next Monday to the Sub-Inspector who will make report of this order & its effects to Col. Chandler by Monday night."

Orders Second Brigade, Westfield, April 10, 1780:

"The officers of the Line are to send for their Espontoons & in future to make use of them on Duty: if any Espontoons should want repairing they must be done without Delay.

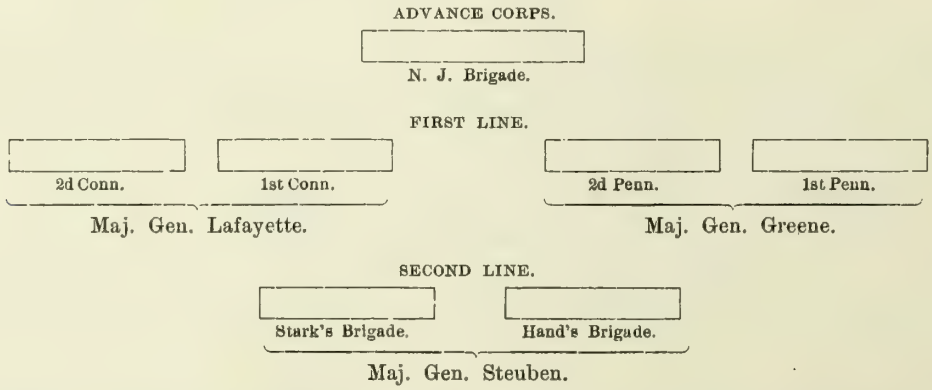
The Comnd^ant^ of the Brigade recalls the officers & soldiers to the order of the 7th inst. Col^o^ Chandler will set out for Connec't within two Days: Those who inlist will have 300 Doll^s^ advanced, & a Furlough till the first of June next.

A settlement is now taking place as fast as the Comnd^ant^ can push the accounts; when compleated proper securities will be given. Fifty Dollars extra shall be given to the first effective man who will inlist."

From Morristown to the Highlands.— Before leaving the outposts and winter quarters in New Jersey, a portion of the Division repeated their protest against ill-treatment made at Redding the winter before, but the disturbance was quelled largely by the prompt action of Col. Meigs then in Command of the 1st Brigade. Washington wrote him a note of acknowledgment, May 29, '80, in which he said:

"I am very much obliged to you for your exertions upon the first appearance of a proceeding of so dangerous a nature & for your conduct throughout the whole of it. Mutiny, as you very properly observe, cannot in any case be justified, but still if the Commissaries by a Partiality of Issues, have in any degree given ground of Complaint they shall be called to account for it."

The Southern troops being ordered South under Gates and DeKalb, Washington remained in New Jersey until the latter part of June, awaiting the enemy's movements. Meanwhile he arranged his order of Battle as follows — date "Headquarters, Short Hills, June 7, 1780":



The Connecticut Division at this time was encamped at "Kimbol's Farms," N. J., and about June 20th marched to the Highlands and halted for a few days at Buttermilk Falls on the west side of the Hudson. On June 28–29, it crossed to Nelson's Point on the East side and took post on the old grounds near Robinson's House quite familiar to it. Gen. Huntington's quarters were near "Mr. Neillson's House."

Movements against the Enemy. — In July, Sir Henry Clinton, who had lately returned from South Carolina, organized an expedition against the French contingent at Newport, R. I. To defeat his object Washington at once prepared to make a demonstration in force towards New York. Orders indicate that no time was to be lost. Thus, "Head Quarters Highlands, 28 July 1780":

". . . The New York, Connecticut & Massachusetts Brigades are to be got in readiness to march with the utmost dispatch. The exertions of the officers on this occasion are earnestly enjoined. The occasion Calls for expedition. It is warmly & in the most pointed manner recommended to them to divest themselves of as much baggage as possible, & lodge it at West Point, or where else they choose. . . . . "

Orders for the 1st Connecticut Brigade, July 30th:

"The Com^ding^ officers of Regts. are to have everything in perfect readiness to march at the shortest notice, as no order will be given till the moment of marching."

On the same day, the 30th, the troops moved down the river to Peekskill, and remained there until Aug. 3d. They were to continue their march towards King's Bridge, but learning that Clinton had gone no further than Huntington Bay, L. I., and had apparently relinquished his design against the French, Washington re-crossed the Hudson with his entire force to carry out his own plan of campaign. This plan contemplated a grand reconnoisance down the west side of the river toward Bergen and Staten Island, in the course of which it was expected that an opportunity would offer of striking at the northern end of New York Island. For this object many boats were collected and a fine corps of Light Infantry organized under Lafayette for rapid movements. The general "Order of Battle" for these operations was announced by Washington Aug. 1, 1780, while the army was at Peekskill, as follows:

This was a highly efficient force and by its manœuvres practically challenged the enemy to meet it, but Clinton kept himself in New York. Lafayette moved down beyond Bergen and gathered forage within sight of the enemy, while the main force halted at the "Liberty Pole", back of Ft. Lee. The summer, however, passed without any stirring event.

While encamped near the "Liberty Pole," Washington issued the following order, Aug. 23, '80:

"The army being now very near the Enemy the General flatters himself every officer and soldier will make it a point of honour as well as duty to keep constantly in Camp & to be at the shortest notice ready to act as circumstances may require. He is at the same time persuaded, should an opportunity be afforded us, that every part of the army will vie with each other in the display of that conduct, fortitude & bravery which ought to distinguish Troops fighting for their Country, for Liberty, for everything dear to the citizen or soldier. . . . ."

Colors of the Connecticut Line. — Among the camp orders issued to the Conn. Division during these movements was the following, dated Sept. 10, '80:

"Regulations for Regimental colours in the Connecticut Line.

"The ground of each to be different — each to bear the number of the Regt. in Large characters : — the devise on one side, the Conn^t Arms — on the other, the devise and motto of the 30 Dollar Bills. If the ground of [any] two colours should be so alike as not to be distinguishable 3 or 400 yards, a small field of 13 stripes in the Lower Quarter of one of them may serve as a distinction."

Arnold's Treason. — From Bergen and the Liberty Pole, the army then fell back to Steenrapie, and Orangetown, N. Y. It was at the latter place, some forty miles south of West Point, that the troops first heard of the treason and flight of Arnold on Sept. 25th. Gen. Greene was then temporarily in command, and on the 26th he announced the fact in the General Orders. Published and manuscript letters show that no officers denounced Arnold in severer terms than those of the "Connecticut Line."

Upon discovery of the treason two Pennsylvania Brigades and Meigs' 6th Connecticut Regiment were at once ordered to West Point to meet any attack the enemy may have intended through Arnold's coöperation. The arrest of Maj. André, the enemy's principal agent in the conspiracy, was due largely to the good judgment and promptness of Maj. Benjamin Tallmadge of Sheldon's Dragoons. The Board which tried André was composed of the General Officers of the Army, including Gens. Parsons and Huntington of the Connecticut Division.

Winter Quarters, "Connecticut Village." — Late in the fall the army again and for the fourth time since the organization of the "Continental Line," went into winter quarters. The Connecticut Division built huts near Robinson's Farm, and the encampment was called "Connecticut Village." A further description of it appears under heading D — the next formation, '81–'83.

Consolidation of the "Line." — At this camp the Regiments of the "Connecticut Line" were consolidated for a new formation which had been ordered by Congress. This also will be more particularly noticed under heading D.

The following are the rosters of the Continental Staff and the Regiments of the "Line" for 1777–'81:

GENERAL AND STAFF OFFICERS FROM CONNECTICUT, 1777-1781.

MAJOR-GENERALS.

ISRAEL PUTNAM,.....Of Pomfret. Maj.-Gen. Continental army cont. from '75–'76. Early in the summer of '77 he assumed command of the new Continental regts. arriving in Camp at Peekskill, and in the fall, with a limited force, endeavored to oppose the advance of the enemy up the Hudson. The retreat of the Americans with loss of forts and ships led to a Court of Inquiry in March, '78. Gen. Putnam not held responsible in the case. (See text preceding.) In Jan. '78, with Gov. Clinton and others, he selected West Point for fortification. Returning to Conn. in Feb. '78, he furthered the enlistment of recruits, and in the summer reported at Washington's new camp formed at White Plains after the battle of Monmouth. By Genl. orders, Sept. 7, '78, assigned to the command of the Virginia "Line," consisting of the Brigades of Woodford, Muhlenberg, and Scott. In Oct., by Washington's direction, he took command at West Point, and in the winter of '78–'79 commanded the Conn. Division and other troops at Redding. In June, '79, again reported to Washington and rec'd command of the right wing of the army at Smith's Clove, west of the Hudson — the wing consisting of the Virginia, Maryland, and Penn. Divisions. When the army broke up for the winter '79–'80, Putnam made a visit to his home, but on returning to the main camp then fixed at Morristown, N. J., he rec'd a stroke of paralysis near Hartford, Dec. '79, which incapacitated him for further service. Record cont. in '81.

JOSEPH SPENCER,.....Of East Haddam. Maj.-Gen. Continental Army cont. from '76. Remained in command in R. I. through '77. Organized an expedition of about nine thousand State troops against the enemy at Newport, and on Oct. 26, '77, attempted a forward movement; but the weather and failure of one brigade to report in time caused miscarriage of the plan. Gen. Spencer invited a Court of Inquiry and proposed another effort. Exonerated by the Court Nov. 15, '77. Congress, on Dec. 11, also ordered an investigation. Spencer resigned Dec. 20th following, and on Jan. 13, '78, Congress accepted the resignation "for the reasons offered by him in his letter of the 20th." Afterwards member of Cont. Congress.

BENEDICT ARNOLD,.....Of New Haven. Cont. as Brig.-General Continental army from '76. Prom. by Congress Major-General May 2, '77, with Commission dated Feb. 19, '77. After retiring from Northern Dept. in fall of '76, he appears on public and private business at Phila., Providence, Albany, and New Haven. While at latter place in April, '77, he hurried to Danbury on the alarm and assisted in repelling the enemy. Placed in command at Philadelphia in May, and in Aug. reported in North. Dept. THIRD REGIMENT, "CONNECTICUT LINE."

FORMATION OF 1777-1781.

[Raised for the new army or "Continental Line" and recruited mainly in Hartford Co. and eastern part of the State; general rendezvous, Middletown. The regt. in part assisted in repelling the enemy at Danbury, Ap. 26-7. Went into Camp at Peekskill in May, '77, and served in Parsons' First Brigade under Putnam along the Hudson until Jan. '78, when the Brig. took post at West Point and later began the construction of permanent works there. Fort Wyllys at that Point doubtless named after the Colonel of the Regt. In the summer of '78 it encamped at White Plains with Washington's main army. Wintered '78-79 at Redding. During operations of '79 served in Gen. Heath's wing on east side of the Hudson. Its Light Co., under Capt. Champion, detached to Meigs' Light Regt. and engaged in storming of Strong Point July 15, '79. Wintered '79-80 at Morristown, N. J., and served on outposts. With the main army on the Hudson during '80, and wintered '80-81 at Camp "Connecticut Village" above the Robinson House, Hudson River. There it was reorganized for the next formation of the Line. MEIGS' LIGHT INFANTRY REGIMENT.

Engaged in Assault on Stony Point, July 15, 1779.

[In July, 1779, Washington organized a corps of light troops under Brig.-Gen. Wayne, to serve at the front, and especially to attempt the capture of Stony Point on the Hudson, which the enemy had occupied since May. The Corps was composed of picked men from all the regiments then under Washington's immediate command, each regt. contributing companies of 40, 50, or 60 men according to its strength, and organized into four regiments of two battalions each. It was to disband at the end of the campaign. The Connecticut Division furnished one of the regts. numbering four hundred officers and men. In the assault, which occurred at midnight, July 15, '79, it formed part of Wayne's right column. The brilliant exploit had an inspiring effect upon the American army. COL. SAMUEL B. WEBB'S REGIMENT, 1777-1781.

[One of the sixteen "additional" regiments of infantry raised at large for the "Continental Line" of '77, to continue through the war. Recruited mainly in Hartford County and eastern part of the State. Went into camp at Peekskill in the spring of '77 and served in Parsons' Brigade under Putnam during movements of following summer and fall. On advance of the enemy and the loss of Forts Clinton and Montgomery, Oct., '77, it crossed to west side of Hudson and served under Gov. Clinton of N. Y., for a time. On Dec. 10, the regiment engaged with other troops in an expedition against L. I., which met with accidents, leaving Col. Webb and other officers prisoners in enemy's hands. Regt. wintered with Parsons' Brigade at West Point and assisted in construction of permanent works there. Redoubt "Webb" doubtless named after the Col. In summer of '78 it was attached to Varnum's Brigade and marched to R. I., engaging in the battle there of Aug. 29, '78; commended for its conduct. Wintered in R. I. '78–'79 and remaining there till fall of '79 marched to winter quarters, Morristown, N. J., '79–'80; assigned to Stark's Brigade, Lt.-Col. Huntington commanding. Present at battle of Springfield, N. J., June 23, '80, and during following summer served with main army on the Hudson. Upon a memorial of Col. Huntington, the Assembly of Conn. on 2d Thursday of May, '80, adopted the regt. as one of the "Conn. Line," and a Committee of Congress in Camp Preakness, N. J., June 23, '80, approved the measure. It was designated the 9th Regt. and went into winter quarters, '80–'81, with the Division at Camp "Connecticut Village" above the Robinson House. There it was re-organized for formation of '81–'83. See text, heading C.]

COL. SETH WARNER'S REGIMENT, 1777-81.

OFFICERS AND MEN FROM CONNECTICUT.

[This regiment was recruited under resolution of Congress in the fall of '76 and early in '77. Not credited to any State "Line," nor included among the "additional," it was raised at large. Men enlisted from the Hampshire Grants, Mass., and Conn. The regiment served in the Northern Dept., as at Bennington and Saratoga, and was stationed for some time at Forts Anne and George. In Oct., 1780, the enemy approached these forts by way of Lake Champlain. Capt. Chipman, commanding at Ft. George. sent his force out to offer resistance but his men were overwhelmed and nearly all killed or taken prisoners. The following roster represents the Conn. quota in the regt. as it stood in 1780, when it had been considerably reduced by discharges and casualties. The command was disbanded Jan. 1, 1781.]

WYOMING VALLEY COMPANIES.

[Wyoming Valley, Penn., originally settled by Connecticut people and subsequently designated by the State as Westmoreland Co., Conn., contributed two "Independent Companies" and smaller detachments to the Continental Army of '77. The companies were commanded respectively by Capts. Robert Durkee and Samuel Ransom. They joined Washington's army in New Jersey about Jan. 1, '77, and engaged in the "affairs" of Millstone River and Bound Brook in N. J. as well as in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown in Penn. A detachment of Ransom's Co. under Lieut. Spalding formed part of the garrison at Ft. Mifflin mentioned on p. 129. The companies wintered at Valley Forge, '77–78, with the Connecticut Regiments. In the spring of '78 rumors of a threatened Indian attack upon Wyoming reached camp and Capts. Durkee and Ransom resigned their commands to return to assist in the protection of their homes. A few of the men also returned, but the companies as such were retained with the army. Under Act of Congress, June 23, '78, the two companies were consolidated into one and placed under command of Lieut. Spalding, lately promoted Captain. In the latter part of June it was ordered to Wyoming, but failed to arrive there before the Indian attack and massacre of July 3, '78 (well known in American history), occurred. In that attack settlers and settlements alike were swept away; and among many others who lost their lives were Capts. Durkee and Ransom. Spalding's Co. soon re-entered the Valley, built a new fort and remained there until the fall of '80. In the meantime, in the summer of '79, it joined Sullivan's expedition against the western Indians. Only a small portion of the company appears to have returned to Washington's camp, then in the Hudson Highlands, where it was distributed among the companies of Durkee's regiment in the new formation of 1781–83. These Wyoming men represented and were paid by Connecticut as a part of her Continental contingent. The officers of the two companies, as originally appointed by Congress, and the rosters of the men are given below, followed by the roster of the united company under Capt. Spalding.]

COL. SHELDON'S LIGHT DRAGOONS, 1777-83.

[Of the four regiments of Light Dragoons raised for the Continental army in '77, the second, commanded by Col. Elisha Sheldon, was raised in and credited to Connecticut, although some of the officers and men belonged to other States. Its field of service during the war was generally the east side of the Hudson along the Westchester front. Occasionally its companies served at different points. In the spring of '77 Maj. Tallmadge joined Washington in N. J. with two Troops and fought at Germantown, Oct. 4. At the same time Capt. Seymour, with his Troop, was serving under Gates against Burgoyne. The other Troops were under Putnam's command at Peekskill. In the summer of '78 the Regt. was on the Hudson, and in the fall formed part of Gen. Chas. Scott's Light Corps on the lines in Westchester. The main body with infantry supports guarded the same ground to the close of the war. It wintered generally in Conn.; in '80-'81, however, it was sent to Western Mass. where hay and forage were plenty. Maj. Tallmadge was frequently detached on special service by Washington, and distinguished himself in expeditions. Regt. disbanded June, '83.

The following roster of the command appears among the Rev. records in the Pension Bureau, Washington, and is of special interest as the heading indicates. The names of the officers have been rearranged according to their rank, with some remarks added.

"Size Roll of the 2d Regt. Lt. D. containing a List of the Names of the Officers, non-commd officers and soldiers of the 2d Regt. L. D. commanded by Col. Decr 12, 1776, & ending with the Revolutionary War. Prepared and kept by Benja Tallmadge, Major 2d Regt. L. D."]

BENJ^N TALLMADGE,

Late Major 2^d Regt. Lt. Dragoons.

COL. LAMB'S ARTILLERY, 1777-83.

OFFICERS AND MEN FROM CONNECTICUT.

[Of the four regiments of artillery raised in '77 for the new Continental army, the Second under Col. Lamb was recruited largely in New York. Connecticut's contribution to it consisted of one hundred and seventy men, divided into four companies. They were enlisted mainly from New Haven, Stratford, and neighboring towns. In the field the regiment was distributed among the infantry divisions and stationed at different posts, as at Ft. Clinton, West Point, &c. In '79, Capt. Walker's Co. was attached to the Connecticut Division. The regiment was represented in nearly all the battles of the north and at the siege of Yorktown, and was noted for its efficiency. Remained in service to close of the war.]

REGIMENT OF "ARTIFICERS."

OFFICERS AND MEN FROM CONNECTICUT.

[Among the Continental organizations authorized by Congress in '77 was a corps of "Artificers" to be commanded by Jeduthan Baldwin, of Mass., who signs himself in July, 1780, as "Col. of Engineers and Lieut.-Col. Com^dt of Artificers." It was to serve under the directions of the Quartermaster General, and its duties appear to have been those attached to a pioneer and construction corps. The men were largely artisans, carpenters, builders, tent makers, tailors, &c. The regiment was at Brandywine, Germantown, Monmouth, and other fields. A large proportion of the officers and men, as appears from the following rolls, joined from Connecticut.]

CAPTAIN PENDLETON'S COMPANY IN THE SOUTHERN DEPARTMENT.

[When Gen. Greene assumed command of the Southern Department in 1780, succeeding Gates, he urgently requested that Capt. Pendleton's Company of Artificers "wholly raised in Connecticut" might be sent to him (Qr. Mr. Genl. Pickering to Gov. Trumbull). The company marched as directed and was the only body of men from the state that served South of Virginia during the Revolution. It remained there until the disbandment of the troops in Nov., '83. By that time, however, the company had been greatly reduced. On the last rolls the following names appear, evidently recruits.]

CORPS OF INVALIDS, 1777-83.

OFFICERS AND MEN FROM CONNECTICUT.

[By act of the Continental Congress, June 23, 1777, a "Corps of Invalids" was formed, consisting of eight companies, "to be employed in garrison, and for guards in cities and other places where magazines or arsenals or hospitals are placed; also to serve as military school for young gentlemen previous to their being appointed to marching regiments," etc. It was to be composed in the first instance of officers and men who had been rendered, by casualties or otherwise, incapable of field service but who could still perform light duty. Col. Lewis Nicola, of Philadelphia, was elected Colonel, and the greater part of the command appears to have been composed of Pennsylvania men. The regiment was discharged April 23, 1783. The following officers and soldiers were transferred to it from the "Connecticut Line," as reported on rolls for the years '80 and '83.]

CORPS OF SAPPERS AND MINERS, 1777-1783.

OFFICERS AND MEN FROM CONNECTICUT.

[The small but efficient corps of Sappers and Miners in the Revolutionary army was not fully organized until the summer of '79. While the army was at Valley Forge, Washington issued the following order, dated Feb. 8, '78: "Officers who are desirous of taking Commissions in the Companies of Sappers under the command of Brigadier Genl. DuPortail and possess the necessary qualifications, such as a knowledge of Practical geometry and drawing, will give in their names at the Adjutant Genl's office. 3 Capts., 3 First Lieutenants, and 3 Second Lieutenants are wanting." No officers, however, were appointed until the following year. Four of the nine called for were from Connecticut. The only opportunity given the Corps to render special service was at the siege of Yorktown, Va. Sept.-Oct., '81.]

WASHINGTON'S LIFE GUARDS, 1779-1783.

OFFICERS AND MEN FROM CONNECTICUT.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

[Washington's body guard, organized in '76, consisted originally of about one hundred and seventy-five men, commanded by Maj. Caleb Gibbs, of Rhode Island. Under orders, dated Valley Forge, Mar. 17, '78, the guard was to be increased by one hundred men additional. "As the General's guard," runs the order, "is composed of Virginians, the one hundred draughts will be taken from the troops of other States. Height of men from five feet eight to five feet ten; age from twenty to thirty, and men of established character for sobriety and fidelity. They must be American born." At the same time Lieut. William Colfax, of the "Conn. Line" was attached to the Guards. A return of the corps for July, '79, gives it a strength of 1 Major, 1 Lieut., 1 Surgeon, 6 Serjts., 5 Corpls., 4 Drums and Fifes, and 120 Privates. Maj. Gibbs being assigned to Lafayette's Light Corps in Va. in the summer of '81, the Guards passed under the command of Lieut. Colfax who retained it until the disbandment of the troops in June, '83.]

D.—REGIMENTS, "CONNECTICUT LINE."

FORMATION OF 1781–1783.

The Eight Regiments Reduced to Five.

THE CONTINENTAL Congress, by resolutions of October 3d and 21st, 1780, provided for anew arrangement or "establishment" of the army of '77–'81. A general reduction in the number of regiments was ordered, without decreasing the number of troops then in the field. Thus, by consolidation, the fifteen Massachusetts regiments of infantry were reduced to ten; the four from New York to two; the fifteen in Virginia to eight; the eight from Connecticut to five, &c.

ORGANIZATION.

The "Connecticut Line" for 1781–83.—The new arrangement went into effect Jan. 1, 1781. For Connecticut the consolidation took the following form, as directed by orders of Gen. Parsons:

New Formation.		Old Formation.
First Regiment, ...	to be composed of	the non-com'snd officers and privates of the late Third and Fourth Regiments.
Second Regiment, ...	" " "	the non-com'snd officers and privates of the late Fifth and Seventh Regiments.
Third Regiment, ...	" " "	the non-com'snd officers and privates of the late Second and Ninth (Col. S. B. Webb's) Regiments.
Fourth Regiment, ...	" " "	the non-com'snd officers and privates of the late Sixth Regiment.
Fifth Regiment, ...	" " "	the non-com'snd officers and privates of the late First and Eighth Regiments.

Officers for the New Formation.—The resolutions of Congress provided that the officers of each State should meet and agree upon the officers for their respective State "Lines," selecting from those who were inclined to continue in the service. Where agreement could not be reached they were to be retained according to seniority. Retiring officers were to be allowed half pay for life. Under these provisions Gen. Parsons called upon the officers of the Connecticut Line to signify in writing whether they were inclined to remain or retire, adding that he hoped "every officer whose age, Health and Circumstances will allow of it, will be willing to continue his services to his Country."

The new commands were duly officered and in a few days the re-organization was effected. As Cols. Wyllys, Bradley, Starr, and Meigs retired, the five regiments were commanded as follows:

First Regiment, ...	Col. John Durkee, ...	Late of the Fourth.
Second Regiment, ...	Col. Heman Swift, ...	Late of the Seventh.
Third Regiment, ...	Col. Samuel B. Webb, ...	Late of the Ninth.
Fourth Regiment, ...	Col. Zebulon Butler, ...	Late of the Second.
Fifth Regiment, ...	Lt. Col. Com^{dnt} Isaac Sherman, . .	Late of the Eighth.

One of the first orders Col. Sherman issued to his new Fifth Regiment prescribed the uniforms for the officers, as follows:

"The uniform of the Regt. is to be blue with white facings, white vest and white Breeches: The officers are Desired to have their coats in exact uniform and are to observe the following directions in the fasion of them: Common round cuffs, 4 large buttons on each, common mode of pockets with four buttons to each, 4 buttons on each fold. Lappels 2½ inch broad, without Lappets; Button holes to the Lappets, and 10 Buttons to each equally divided plain behind and Laped over."

RECORD FOR 1781.

Winter Quarters, "Connecticut Village," '80–'81.—As stated on page 140, the "Line" went into winter quarters this season above Robinson's Farm. The site selected was just "back of Constitution Island," opposite West Point, about one mile and a half from the river and not far from the main road. It is described as lying between "two high mountains" and advantageously situated. One or two of the Connecticut officers, however, speak of it as being a primitive spot quite out of the world. Here the soldiers built good huts and a Division Assembly room, and the cantonment became known as "Connecticut Village." Under orders dated "Highlands, near North Redoubt," Dec. 2, 1780, Gen. Parsons gave the following directions:

"The hutting ground is to be Laid for five Regts. under the new formation, to be calculated for 400 men each. Each of said Regts. to appoint an officer to lay out the ground and superintend the building of the huts under the direction of a field officer who is to supervise the whole.

As great uniformity and exactness as possible to be observed in arranging and building the Hutts. Lines to be drawn within which each Regiment is to get timber and firewood.

Any dispute between two Regiments respecting Bounds to be determined by the superintending field officer with the three or any two superintending officers of other Regts. . . . . ."

The huts, adds Parsons, must be "carried up square, not to be less than six feet high and the Rafters nine feet long from the eves to the Ridge Pole." Lieut.-Col. Gray, of the new Fourth Regiment, was appointed field officer to superintend the work for the Division.

In case of an alarm the Division was to man the works on Constitution Island and the "North" and "South" Redoubts on the road below the new winter cantonment. The latter were the works the "Line" had completed during the previous summer, referred to on page 132.

Mutiny in the Army. Gen. Parsons and the Connecticut Line.—On the night of Jan. 1, 1781, the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line, then in winter quarters at Morristown, N. J., broke into open mutiny. Their sufferings and grievances—want of clothes and sufficient food as well as the non-fulfillment of terms as to pay and length of service—drove them to seek redress, and leaving camp they determined to lay their demands before Congress. All efforts to bring them to reason failed, and in the end they carried their point with the result that the Pennsylvania Line was practically disbanded for the winter. Alarmed at this movement Washington immediately sounded his General officers as to the disposition of the troops from other States. From Gen. Parsons, commanding the Connecticut Division, he received the following letter, the original of which appears on file in the State Department, Washington:

"Camp Highlands, 12th Jany '81.

Dear General

The Instances of Firmness in the Connec^t Line exhibited amongst the Privates since I had the Honor of seeing you fully convinces me of the justice of my Observations Yesterday on that subject and I believe the same spirit pervades the whole of the Line.

In two Instances Application was made this morning for furloughs by Privates who had been three years absent. The Men were informed that the defection of the Pennsylvania Line would probably require their attendance to reduce them to their duty; they answered without hesitation, they had rather never see home than the cause of the country should suffer by such unjustifiable Conduct or that your Excellency should be in danger from that or any other misconduct; they went back with great cheerfulness and said they would never apply again until they were brought back to their duty. And in many instances the Officers Servants have beg'd to be arm'd. and permitted to go on this Duty:—from these Circumstances and other observations I am convinced the fullest confidence may in this Instance, be plac'd in the Connec^t Troops.

I am Dr General

Y^r Obed^t Servant

SAM. H. PARSONS."

The New Jersey Line, in part, followed the example of the Pennsylvania troops, but a detachment from the brigades in the Highlands marched to the scene and prevented serious results. A portion of the Connecticut troops had twice attempted to redress their grievances in a similar manner — once at Redding in Dec. '78, and again at Morristown in the spring of '80, as already briefly noticed — but the exertions of the officers on each occasion had the desired effect of restoring order.

The army in general, both officers and men, had frequent occasion to complain of neglect of its interests on the part of Congress and the several State authorities. A little later, or in June, '81, Gens. Parsons and Huntington called the attention of Gov. Trumbull and Gen. Washington to the distressing condition of the officers of the Connecticut Line owing to the long delay in the adjustment of their pay accounts. Parsons especially exerted himself to have justice done them.

Orders, Camp "Connecticut Village." — The Division passed the winter quietly in its army "Village," men and officers receiving furloughs in rotation, and in the spring time drilling and fatigue duty were again revived.

Among the orders issued from this Camp were the following:

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

"Regimental Orders [Fifth Regt.]
May 30, '81.

The Waiters are constantly to attend Roll call morning and evening. This to be Considered as a Standing order.

No man to appear on parade with unwashed hands or uncombed hair. The N. C. off^rs to powder their hair if flour can be obtained for this purpose. The arms of the Reg^t will be inspected by the Col^o next Saturday morning, at 6 o'clock if the weather should be fair. The men to be dressed as clean & neat as possible. Stephen Ranny of Capt Benton's Comp^y is appointed Corp^l & is to be respected accordingly."

Directions for Saluting. — Division Orders, June 7, '81:

"When a Non. Com. off^rs Party passes a Commiss'd, they are to carry arms. A Single Soldier or two or three when without N. C. off^r with their arms meet a Commiss'd officer, halt, front & carry arms at least six paces before the officer gets to him & remains in that position till he has passed. If a N. C. off^rs Party, or Single Soldier, overtakes & passes an officer they are to carry arms. The same if an officer is Standing or Sitting Still. When a Soldier without arms meets an officer he will halt at the same distance as with arms, front & pull off his Hat or Cap with his Right hand letting it down the length of his arm in a graceful easy posture. When an officer speaks to a Soldier, his hat must be taken off in the same manner as when passing him, always remembering to look the officer full in the face. If the Soldier has arms in his hands, he is to recover them briskly when speaking to an officer in room of taking off his hat, & continue in that position untill the officer has done speaking with him. All sentries must present their arms to Genl officers and Field officers of their own Regts; to all other Commiss'd officers they stand with shoulder'd arms.

After Retreat beating no honors to be paid.—

It is expected these orders are strictly attended to by all Soldiers without the Chain of Sentinels or the common limits of Camp; when in Camp the usual custom of lifting the hat without stopping.

There is not anything of more importance to the introducing order & regularity in a Reg^t than the N. C. off^rs having a proper command over the men & supporting a dignity Suitable to their Station. In order to this a certain distinction is necessary to be observed & there is a respect due from the Soldiers to them. The Soldier, therefore, whenever a Sergt. enters his quarters should rise and take off his hat in a graceful manner, after which he may sit unless the Sergt. has some orders to deliver him, in which Case he must stand with hat off till the Sergt. has Communicated the orders; and when the N. C. off^r retires the same attention must be paid him as at his entering."

Taking the Field. March to Peekskill. — Washington's plan of Campaign this year involved the co-operation of the French forces and presented an alternative. If circumstances favored at a given moment, a combined attack upon New York was to be attempted; or if other circumstances interposed, a march upon the enemy in Virginia might be ventured. Preparatory to either plan the troops were concentrated in June at Peekskill and vicinity. The Connecticut Line marched for that point on June 21st under the following Division order of June 20, '81:

"The Division will be furnished with Teams to morrow morning to carry their baggage & three Teams to carry the baggage unnecessary for the field, to Danbury or elsewhere.

The Troop will beat at 9 & the March begin at half after 9 by the way of Neilson's & east of the North Redoubt — the baggage in the Rear.

The old & new Camp guards will form the Rear and Front Guards under the direction of the officer of the day: The

Q. M^r will attend with the Pioneers. The Q. M^r will apply this afternoon at West Point for their proportion of Tents which are to be transported by water to Peekskill Landing & from thence removed by the Teams which carry the other baggage."

Pending further movements, the troops at Peekskill were instructed to perfect their drill and discipline, and to take due pride in their appearance in view of the approaching junction with the French contingent, then on its march from Newport. In the Connecticut Division battalion drills were held every afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. In the mornings the troops were "to exercise in detail and practice the manuel, marching and wheeling in the different times, breaking off the sections and marching by files."

Camp Phillipsburg, Near Dobbs' Ferry. — From Peekskill the troops moved down nearer New York and took position at Phillipsburg, in the following ORDER OF BATTLE, JULY, 1781.

The French, on their arrival, encamped on the left of the American troops, and with the combined forces Washington made a grand reconnoisance of the enemy's defences on New York Island, indicating an investment of the position. The army, however, returned to Phillipsburg. Among orders issued from this Camp were the following:

"Hd. Qrs. Near Dobbs' Ferry,
July 12, 1781.

Officers of the day to-morrow { Maj. Gen. Parsons
Colº Butler

For Picket, Maj. Keith.
Inspector from Second Mass.

Until further orders the Troops are to be constantly provided with three days allowance of baked bread & two days allowance of cooked beef. . . . . ."

"Head Qrs. Phillipsburg,
July 17, 1781.

Officers of the day to-morrow { Maj. Gen. Lincoln.
Lt. Colº Olney.
Inspector, from 1st Mass.

For Picket, Maj. Woodbridge.

The Commander in Chief is exceedingly pleased with the conduct of M. Genl. Howe for marching with so much alacrity & rapidity to the defence of the stores at Tarrytown & Repulsing the enemy's Shipping from thence: — He requests Genl Howe & all the officers & soldiers of the American & French armies who were employed on the occasion to accept this public acknowledgment of their services.

The gallant & spirited exertions of Colº Sheldon and Capt. Hurlbut [Conn.] of the 2d Regt of Light Dragoons, Capt.-Lt. Miles [Conn.] of the Artillery & Lieut. Shaler of the 4th Conn. Regt. previous to the arrival of the Troops, in extinguishing the flames of the vessels which had been set on fire by the enemy, & rescuing the whole of the stores & ordnance from destruction entitles them to the most distinguished notice & applause from their General."

Respecting Capt. Hurlbut, of New London, mentioned in the above order, Washington afterwards had occasion (in the matter of his pay, etc.) to write as follows:

"I do hereby certify that Capt. George Hurlbut, of the Second regiment of light dragoons, received a wound in the gallant performance of his duty near Tarrytown in the summer of '81, of which after having languished in the most exquisite pains until the 8th of May, 1783, he expired. . . . . He saved a very considerable quantity of stores by swimming on board a vessel, and extinguishing the flames that had been kindled by the enemy, amidst a severe fire from their ships."

In orders of July 18, '81, Washington calls for an "active industrious serjeant" to act as Provost Martial, and in orders of the 19th announces that "Serjeant Asa Anderson of the First Conn. Regt. is appointed to do the duty of Provost Martial until further orders & is to be obey'd as such."

The Yorktown Campaign, Connecticut Light Troops.— Receiving word that the expected French fleet under DeGrasse would sail for the Chesapeake and not for New York, Washington immediately accepted the alternative plan of marching against Cornwallis in Virginia. On the 19th of August, accordingly, he broke up camp at Phillipsburg, crossed the Hudson at King's Ferry, and began the famous movement southward that ended in the surrender of Yorktown. In addition to the French troops, he took with him a portion of the Continental army, leaving the remainder under Gen. Heath to hold the Highlands.

Heath's force included the New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Connecticut "Lines," but they were all represented by detachments of Light Companies in the army that invested Yorktown. Three distinct Light Infantry Corps had been organized for some special object during the year. The first was that detached in February under Lafayette to operate in Virginia, and with which that officer led his lively campaign against Cornwallis — retreating, following, harrassing, — during the spring and early summer. It included three Light Regiments, one of which, under Col. Gimat and Major Wyllys, contained five companies from the Connecticut Line. In May, Washington organized a Light Regiment under Col. Scammell of New Hampshire, which went with him to Virginia. Three of its eight companies were taken from the Connecticut Line. Lieut.-Col. Alexander Hamilton also led a Light Battalion of four companies, two of which were from New York, and two from Connecticut. These all formed part of Lafayette's Light Division which held the right of the besieging line before Yorktown. The Connecticut Line had been drawn upon for ten of its thirty-six companies. The rolls of six of these companies appear among the rosters following.

At Yorktown Gimat's battalion distinguished itself by leading the storming column that captured one of the enemy's redoubts on the night of October 14, 1781. The exploit hastened the surrender. The column was preceded by a "forlorn hope" of twenty men under Lieut. John Mansfield of the Fourth Connecticut, who was wounded in scaling the work. Serjeant Brown of the Fifth regiment, subsequently received a "badge of merit" for his coolness and gallant conduct as one of the party. Capt. Stephen Betts and Capt. Roger Welles of the Third regiment were also slightly wounded. Of the ten men killed and twenty-six wounded, a large proportion must have been from the Connecticut companies.

Of the surrender, Capt. Welles wrote home:

"The most pleasing sight I ever beheld, to see those haughty fellows march out of their strong fortifications and ground their arms."

Capt. Morris wrote:

"The 18th day [of Oct.] was a day of respite. Our soldiers were directed to wash up and appear clean on the next day. The British were snug in their tents during this time. On the 19th day our whole army assembled; our army on the right and the French army on the left, about 6 rods apart; and each line reached more than a mile on an extended plain. We were thus drawn up to receive the vanquished. The British army marched out between our two armies, drums beating their own tunes, colors muffled; and after they passed in review of our army they piled their arms on the field of submission and returned back in the same manner into Yorktown."

The Troops on the Hudson.—Exploit in the Sound.—The force left in the Highlands, under Gen. Heath, during Washington's absence in Virginia, had little to do beyond guarding the outposts against predatory parties sent out from New York. It watched the movements of the Commander-in-Chief with the greatest interest, and held a military jubilee upon receiving the news of the surrender of Cornwallis and his army.

One exploit in which Connecticut men were concerned is mentioned in Heath's orders for Nov. 18, '81, as follows:

"On the morning of the 13th inst., Lieut. DeForest of the Connecticut Line with about 25 Regular Troops, & Capt. Lockwood of the militia with 15 volunteers, including Lieuts. Hull & Mead of the Connecticut State Troops, form'd a design to board an arm'd Sloop of 10 carriage guns, then at anchor in East Chester Bay, which they effected with much address & great gallantry; besides the arm'd sloop five or six wood vessels were taken, & in the whole about 40 prisoners 25 of which were soldiers; the whole was conducted much to the honor of all concerned.

The Genl. presents his thanks to Lieut. DeForrest, Capt. Lockwood, Lts. Hull and Mead & and all the Troops employ'd on the enterprise for their gallant behaviour."

Preparing for Winter Quarters.—Washington's troops did not return to the Hudson from Virginia until about Dec. 1, '81. Meanwhile the force under Heath prepared to go into winter quarters. The Connecticut Division re-occupied camp "Connecticut Village" of the previous winter, back of Constitution Island, as appears from the following orders:

"Hd. Qrs. (Heath's) Continental Village, Nov. 6, 1781.

. . . . . .

Fifty men from the Connect. Line of those worst clad, under the command of proper officers, are to be sent to repair the Hutts built by that Line last year. . . . "

"Hd. Qrs. Nov. 20, 1781.

. . . . . .

The Conn^t Line will remove to their Hutts on Fryday next:—great care is to be taken to preserve the Tents and other camp equipage; every thing which is unnecessary or not wanted in winter quarters is to be return'd to the respective Departments from which they were drawn.

The D. Q. M. will furnish such Boats & vessels as may be necessary to convey the baggage of the respective Brigades to West Point or other Landings most convenient to their quarters."

"Division Orders, Nov. 22, '81.

The Division will march to-morrow morning to the Conn^t Hutts.—the assembly will beat half past 7 & the march begin precisely at 8 by the Left. The whole of the Tents will be struck at Reville beating, at which time the Conductors of Teams will have the Teams ready to receive them and the rest of the baggage.

The Qr. M^rs. will see that the baggage is loaded & that all the Teams move at sunrise in the same order as the Troops . . . ."

Alarm Posts for the Division. Head Quarters, Nov. 28, 1781.

" . . . . The works on Constitution Island to be considered as under the immediate command of the officer command'g the Connec^t Line who will order such guards as may be necessary for the security of the several works &c. to be mounted from the Line; — in case of an alarm the 2 Regts. of the 2^d Briga^de are immediately to man the several works on Constitution Island as their alarm Posts. A division of the Regts. is to be made accordingly which is to be fully explained & understood by the officers: — the 1st Brig^de in such case is to march to the Landing above Constitution Island where they are to wait for orders.

The North & Middle Redoubts are to be considered under the immediate command of the officer command'g the 3^d Mass^ts Brig^de & that part of the N. Hampshire Brig^de, quartered in the N. H. Hutts."

As the Adjutant-General of the army, Gen. Hand of Penn., accompanied Washington to Virginia, Lieut.-Col. Thomas Grosvenor, of the Connecticut Line, was appointed, Aug. 19, '81, Deputy Adjt.-General for Heath's force left on the Hudson. He was also Inspector of the Connecticut Division. The following order relates to his double position:

"Hd. Qrs. Highlands, Dec. 1, '81.

Lt.-Col. Grosvenor finding it difficult from the remote situation of the Division of which he is Inspector to do the duty of D. A. Genl of this army, Lt.-Col. Hull is app^t to that office & is to be obeyed & respected accordingly.— The General requests Lt.-Col Grosvenor to accept his thanks for the great propriety & attention with which he has discharged the important duties of the office.

A Captain from the Conn^t Line to be sent to-morrow to relieve Capt. Selden at Stony Point . . . . ."

RECORD FOR 1782.

Winter Quarters, "Connecticut Village," 1781-'82.— As usual, officers and men received furloughs during this winter. The Divison went into quarters under Gen. Parsons, but his health and domestic affairs took him from camp most of the season. The command of the troops on the east side of the Hudson devolved on Maj.-Gens. Sterling and Howe.

"Head Quarters, Highlands, March 25, '82.

The troops at Fishkill, the Connecticut Line & the works on Constitution Island are to be considered under the immediate command of Maj.-Gen. Lord Sterling: — The 3d Mass. Brigade, the 10th Mass. Regt. & the North & Middle Redoubts are to be considered under the command of Maj.-Gen. Howe."

GEN. PARSONS' FAREWELL ORDER TO THE CONNECTICUT LINE.

After seven years' continuous service, dating from the Lexington Alarm, and after the war had been practically closed by the Yorktown surrender, Gen. Parsons, so long identified with the Connecticut Line, resigned his commission. Upon leaving his old command he issued a parting order as follows:

"Division Orders, April 3, 1782.

It is with regret that Maj.-General Parsons finds himself obliged to inform the Division of the army under his command that his health is so impaired he feels himself totally unable to continue his connection with them any longer. Duty & Inclination would have led him to have accompanied them with his service to the end of the war had not the state of his Health been such as to put it out of his Power. He takes this opportunity to express his cordial attachment to the Interest & welfare of the army in general & of this Division in particular. The Intimacy and friendship with which he has spent seven years with many officers & the harmony which subsisted with all renders it affectionately painful to separate from them & has cemented an union which nothing but necessity should have interrupted — the feelings & pleasing remembrance of which nothing but Death shall obliterate. The Patience under disappointments & distresses, the obedience & attention to Duty by which the Soldiers of the Connecticut Line have been ever distinguished will redound to their lasting honor, & endears them to every friend to the liberties of our country.

The General begs the officers to accept his most hearty thanks for the many & repeated proofs he has received of their friendship & thinks it his duty to give his testimony to the fidelity, fortitude & persevering constancy of both officers & soldiers since he has had the honor to command; and tho' he feels deprived of the Pleasure any longer to unite his personal exertions with theirs, yet his Heart shall be with them in contending for the object of our long and united struggle."

Attempt at Mutiny.— Early in May a few non-commissioned officers and privates of the Connecticut Line attempted to incite the whole body to mutiny upon the same complaints that led to the revolt of the Pennsylvania Line the previous year. Their plot was discovered and frustrated in time and one of the ring-leaders executed. Gen. Heath, writing of the occurrence in his "Memoirs" says: "Mutiny is a most horrid offence in an army, which without strict order and discipline is but a rope of sand. On the other hand, human nature can bear but to a certain degree, and no further; hence any trial of human nature beyond such a degree is impolitic and unjustifiable." Of the Connecticut Line, Heath continues: "It may with strict justice be said that their whole conduct through the war was highly meritorious."

Celebration at West Point.—On May 31st the army in the Highlands, by Washington's orders, celebrated the birth of the Dauphin of France. The troops were drawn up in their encampments and fired salutes. In the afternoon the officers repaired to West Point where the Commander-in-Chief requested "the pleasure of their Company at dinner." At the table "thirteen toasts were drank" and each toast announced by a discharge of artillery. In the evening fire-works were displayed from Fort Webb. The festivities were held under an elaborate arbor which by Gen. Heath's instructions had been constructed by the carpenters in the army and detachments from the Connecticut Line and the Third Massachusetts Brigade, under the direction of Maj. Villefranche.

Regimental Orders. Fifth Regiment. — Connecticut Village, June 7, '82:

"The various prices which the tailors have rec^d for making cloathing for the officers induces the Col^o to fix the prices that may be required for making the different garments which will be invariably adhered to till further orders.

A full trimmed regi^tl Coat — 1 doll^r & $\frac{1}{3}$; broadcloth vest & Breeches $\frac{1}{2}$ do; cutting a regi^tl Coat or watch coat $\frac{1}{6}^{th}$ of a doll^r.

The Col^o with displeasure has observed many of the soldiers with their hatts flapped — to prevent which in future, he directs the new hatts to be new cocked & sewed up. Any soldier who has rec^d a new hatt that shall hereafter be seen wearing of it flapped must be punished. I. SHERMAN, Lt.-Col. Com^dant."

Drilling and Reviews. — During the winter and spring of this year, 1782, the troops received a new supply of clothing, which greatly improved their appearance. Washington called upon them to complete their soldierly character by perfecting themselves in discipline. As soon as the weather permitted, accordingly, drilling became the order of the day. On April 12th the Commander-in-Chief visited "Connecticut Village" and his presence there is noticed as follows by Capt. Roger Welles:

"CONN^CT HUTTS, April 13, '82.

. . . "Yesterday the Conn^ct Troops were reviewed by the Commander-in-Chief when he was so particular as to cause every roll to be called by his Aid in his hearing, which circumstance was very pleasing to the soldiery, and served to excite a spirit of emulation among them. After which he made some observations which were very flattering to the officers of the line."

In orders of May 17, Washington announced that he should take an early occasion to review the army by brigades and should criticize their manœuvres. All the commands, as their turn came, made a creditable appearance. The review of the First Connecticut Brigade took place on June 14, and was noticed as follows by the Commander-in-Chief:

"HEAD QUARTERS, NEWBURG,
June 16, 1782.

"The First Connecticut Brigade appears to be composed of as fine a body of men as any in the Army; but as they have labored under the same disadvantages for the want of proper ground to exercise upon, as the Third Brigade of Massachusetts, the General suspends his final judgment of their comparative merit with the rest of the Army, until a fairer opportunity of establishing their discipline can be afforded, by collecting the whole together in the field.

The General, in the meantime is pleased to declare that some of the manœuvres were yesterday performed with great precision; but he is sorry to find, notwithstanding the recommendation contained in the orders of the 8th instant, that the men in the Light Companies do not take so good aim as he expected. He hopes by great attention and frequent practice so useful a habit will be acquired.

The General could not avoid feeling some concern that all the Clothing did not appear perfectly fitted to the men, particularly the overalls. He wishes these defects may be remedied as early and fully as possible."

The review of the Second Brigade on the 17th called out the following order:

"HEAD QUARTERS, NEWBURGH,
June 18, 1782.

"The General informs the Army he had great occasion to be satisfied at the review of the Second Connecticut Brigade yesterday, especially with the soldier-like and veteran appearance of the men, and the exactness with which the firings were performed. He felt particular pleasure in observing the cleanliness and steadiness of the second Regiment under arms.

The review of this Army by Brigades being now completed, the Commander-in-Chief is happy in this opportunity, to present his thanks to Major-General the Baron Steuben, for the indefatigable assiduity, and singular attention exhibited in the late Inspections and Reviews, and for his eminent services in promoting the discipline of the Army on all occasions; and, at the same time, to express his approbation of the present laudable disposition and pride of Corps, which seem to be diffused throughout the Army.

From the spirit of emulation, and a consideration of the amazing contrast between the past and present appearance of the Troops, the General anticipates the happiest consequences."

The Division appears to have improved itself still further as indicated in the following order from Gen. Stirling, who succeeded Gen. Parsons in its command:

"Division Orders, July 6, '82.

"The Right Honorable Maj. Genl Lord Sterling has been pleased to request it to be communicated to the Division, that he had great pleasure to observe this morning how well the Battalions went thro' their manœuvring and firings; & that his pleasure was much increas'd in hearing the very great approbation & satisfaction expressed by his Excellency, the Commander-in-Chief, on the occasion, & in particular that those, his sentiments, be communicated to the officers & soldiers who were in the Field: & also that our Visitants Don Francisco Randan, Monsr Holker &c. expressed a high satisfaction at the exhibitions.

His Lordship desires his sincere thanks be given for the good behaviour of the Troops."

Duty on the Outposts.—Heath's orders, July 8, '82:

"The Light Companies of the 1st, 2^d, 3rd & 4th Connecticut and the 8th Massachusetts Regts. relieve the Command on the Lines at Troop beating the 10th Inst. They will parade in the road near the red church; Major Darby Commands them. A Surgeon & Mate from the 1st Connecticut Brigade for that service.

The 5th Connecticut Regt. relieves the Command at Dobb's Ferry, Verplank's & Stony Points on the 11th inst."

On Aug. 21st two Light Infantry regiments were organized, composed of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut companies, which took post near Peekskill. Col. Samuel B. Webb, of the Third Connecticut, commanded.

Movement by Water to Verplanck's Point.—As the summer advanced Washington proposed to move the troops, which were still in their winter quarters or vicinity, further down the river and form a grand encampment at Verplanck's Point. The movement was to be made by water in boats and barges under the following order:

"Head Quarters, Newburgh, Aug. 30, 1782.

Precisely at 5 o'clock to-morrow morning the generale is to be beat on which the Tents and baggage of the two Connect^t & three Mass. Brigades are to be put into the batteaus. At 7 o'clock the assembly will beat when these Brigades are immediately to march & embark by the right, proceeding in one column to Verplanck's Point in the following order:

The 1st Conn., 2^d Conn., 3^d, 2^d & 1st Mass. Brigades.

The leading Reg^t. of the 1st Conn. Brigade is to advance 200 yards as a van guard & detach one company which is to keep about 100 yards in front of it. The boats of each Regt. are to keep abreast & far enough apart to prevent interference—the companies will embark as they are formed on parade & observe that order.

The Col^o. is to be on the right, the Lt.-Colo. on the left. Between each reg^t. there is to be a space of 75 yards; between the Brigades 150; & between the Divisions 250 yards.

The Gen^ls & officers comman^ding Divisions & Brigades are to be at the head of their respective corps—the Maj.-Genls. 50 yards & the Brigadiers 25 advanced of them. As soon as the Troops have embarked & taken their distances, the van being nearly opposite to little Dick's Ferry, or Meigs' Redoubt, the rear Brig^de will beat a march which will be repeated to the front as a preparative. Three cannon will be fired from the Park at West Point and the column will immediately get in motion; the music of the different regiments playing alternately if the situation of the boats will admit of it. The inspector of music will regulate the beats. If any Boats shall prove too leaky, break its oars, or from any other cause is unable to keep the line, it is to turn out and follow after in such a manner as the prudence of the officer commanding it shall judge best. No Batteaux is to be without a commissioned officer in it.

The General Staff of the Army except the Inspector Adjutant and Quarter Master Generals, who may assist in preserving regularity and order in this movement, and all the Baggage that is not in the Batteaux with the troops, are to follow at the distance of half a mile in the rear aggreably to the order which they may receive from the Quarter Master General . . . . . The soldiers will take care to fill their canteens before they embark, as there will be no landing for water afterwards. The artillery annexed to the Brigades will proceed by land and join their respective corps at Verplanck's Point . . . . ."

This movement was accomplished as described in Washington's orders, with "the utmost regularity and good order." Heath states that the troops made "a beautiful appearance when in boats and in motion."

Camp Verplanck's Point.—In this new encampment the army remained through September and the greater part of October, making still further proficiency in drill and discipline. The following was announced as the ORDER OF BATTLE, AUG.—OCT., 1782.

N. H. Brig.	1st Mass. Brig. Col. Shepherd.	2d Mass. Brig. Gen. Paterson.	3d Mass. Brig. Col. Greaton.	2d Conn. Brig. Col. Swift.	1st Conn. Brig. Gen. Huntington.	N. Y. Brig. Col. Cortlandt.	N. J. Brig. Col. Dayton.

His Excellency, Gen. Washington, Commander-in-Chief.

The two Connecticut Brigades retained the same organization this year as in the order of battle given for July, 1781, namely:

CONNECTICUT DIVISION, 1781-1783.

First Brigade.

Brig.-Gen. Huntington.
- 1st Regt. . . . Cols. Durkee, Grosvenor.
- 5th Regt. . . . Col. Sherman.
- 3d Regt. . . . Col. Webb.

Second Brigade.

Col. Swift.
- 2d Regt. . . . Col. Swift.
- 4th Regt. . . . Col. Butler.
- R. I. Regt. . . . Col. Olney.

From Verplanck's to Newburgh.—On Oct. 28, 1782, the army broke up camp at Verplanck's Point and crossed to Newburgh further up the river, marching around by way of West Point. On Oct. 24th Washington issued the following order:

"Before the army marches from the Ground, the Commander in Chief Orders it to be signified to the several Corps which have been in the Field, that he has been particularly satisfied with the Internal Police and order of the encampments as well as the perfect regularity with which every species of Duty has been performed the present campaign . . . .

The Honorable the Secretary of War expressed his entire approbation at the splendid and soldier like appearance the army exhibited this Morning in passing in Review and performing all the Manœuvres with the greatest exactness and alacrity, and has requested that it be made known to the officers and men, that he entertains the highest sense of their attention, Perseverance and Zeal in making such astonishing proficiency in their profession since he last had the pleasure of seeing any part of them under arms.

The Commander in Chief directs the communication to be made and at the same time is pleased to add that he can not conceal the satisfaction he experiences in observing that the last grand Manœuvre that will be performed this campaign surpassed every other exhibition of the kind that has been made in the American Army."

At Newburgh the troops presently separated to go into winter quarters for the last time during the war. Some remained in what was known as the "Newburgh Cantonment," some distance back of the town, and others re-occupied their old huts. The Connecticut Line marched to West Point and vicinity early in November. There, also, under resolutions of Congress directing a further consolidation of regiments in the army, the "Line" was for the third time, since 1777, reorganized. The following order from Gen. Huntington, dated Oct. 29, 1782, has reference to the matter:

"The Commander-in-Chief is desirous of collecting the sentiments of the officers as to the mode that would be most agreeable in reforming the Regts. of the Connect^t Line. Gen. Huntington is to attend at Head Quarters on the business to-morrow morning & will be glad of the communications of the gentlemen by 8 o'clock in the morning."

FORMATION, JAN.-JUNE, 1783.

For the new formation, to go into effect Jan. 1, 1783, the five regiments of the Connecticut "Line" were reduced to three, the number of men remaining about the same. Officers whose services were not needed retired with full benefit of half-pay and land bounties. Under this consolidation the "Line" stood as follows:

CONNECTICUT BRIGADE, 1783.

BRIG.-GEN. HUNTINGTON.

First Regiment.	Second Regiment.	Third Regiment.
COL. ZEBULON BUTLER.	COL. HEMAN SWIFT.	COL. SAMUEL B. WEBB.

The foregoing consolidation was effected by disbanding the late Fourth and Fifth Regiments and distributing them among the first three. The enlisted men of the Fifth went to the Second and those of the Fourth were divided between the First and Third.

As the war was now over the dissolution of the Revolutionary army was looked for. It took place in the early summer of '83. Under Washington's orders the greater portion of the troops were disbanded before the middle of June. A few regiments were retained to serve at West Point until the close of the year, namely, four from Massachusetts, one from New Hampshire, the Rhode Island regiment, and one from Connecticut.

FINAL FORMATION, JUNE-DEC., 1783.

The Connecticut regiment retained was formed of all those men who had enlisted for short terms or definite periods. The men "for the war" were granted furloughs and later in the season declared to be discharged. This regiment was commanded by Col. Swift, and partial rolls of its companies appear in their proper place in the pages following. Finally, in December, '83, its discharge was ordered and with it disappeared the last of the Connecticut Line of the Revolutionary Army.

In the pages immediately following are the rosters of the General Staff and Regiments of the "Line" for the second formation — Jan. 1, 1781, to Jan. 1, 1783. Also rolls of the Connecticut Light Infantry for the same period.

These in turn are followed by the final formations in 1783.

[1] Death of Col. Durkee.—The Colonel, a veteran of the French and Indian War who had served in the Revolution since the Lexington Alarm, had long borne up against what a fellow officer describes as "a slender and debilitated constitution." He went to his home at Norwich, probably on "sick leave," in the winter of '81–'82 and died May 29, '82. Lt.-Col. Grosvenor of his Regt., learning of his decease, wrote to Gen. Huntington, also then at Norwich, as follows:

"Dear General: By your letter to Doctr Ellis we are informed of the death of Colo Durkee. It is a soldier's maxim not to repine at Fate & a Christian virtue to hold ourselves conformable to the Dispensations of Providence.—I am happy to hear that the Colo possessed his mind with its usual Firmness & composure to his final exit:—it highly indicates the Soldier and Man of worth."

CONNECTICUT LIGHT INFANTRY COMPANIES.

PRESENT AT SIEGE OF YORKTOWN, VA., SEPT.—OCT. 1781.

AS STATED in the text, heading D, three separate detachments of Light Infantry were ordered from the army in 1781. The first — composed of three battalions, eight companies each, numbering in the aggregate twelve hundred men — was called out in February under Lafayette, for the express purpose of marching rapidly to Virginia to check Arnold's invasion of that State and, if possible, effect his capture at Portsmouth where he was then encamped. This project failing (the co-operating French fleet being prevented from blockading the Chesapeake) Washington directed Lafayette to march into Virginia and place himself under the command of Maj.-Gen. Greene, commanding Department of the South, as Cornwallis was then moving towards Virginia from Wilmington, N. C. (to which place he had retired after the battle of Guilford Court House, March 15, 1781.) Under Greene's orders Lafayette remained in that State to watch and delay or thwart the enemy's movements, with the result that from May to August the young French general with his little army was almost constantly on the march, retreating, advancing, skirmishing, until Cornwallis took post at Yorktown early in August. Washington then marched from the Hudson, and joining Lafayette, besieged the enemy who surrendered Oct. 19, 1781. At the siege Lafayette's Division, which included all the Light troops in the American wing, held the post of honor on the right of the investing line. As already noted, of his thirty-six companies, ten were detached from the "Connecticut Line." Five of them went with him to Virginia in February, and five followed in August, under Cols. Scammell and Hamilton, with Washington's main force. The five under Lafayette formed, with two Massachusetts and one Rhode Island companies, a battalion under Col. Gimat, a French officer, and Major Wyllys, of the Third Connecticut. This battalion led the column that stormed one of the enemy's redoubts on the night of Oct. 14th, thereby hastening the surrender. Their rolls are as follows :

THE COMPANIES IN COL. SCAMMELL'S LIGHT REGIMENT.

[In May, '81, Washington ordered the formation of a Light Infantry regiment, preparatory to taking the field in operations against New York or in Virginia. Col. Alexander Scammell, of New Hampshire, was assigned to the command, with Lieut.-Col. Huntington, of the Third Connecticut, and Maj. Rice, of Mass., as field officers. Two companies were detached from the New Hampshire "Line," three from Mass., and three from the Conn. "Line." The regiment went to Virginia with Washington, where Col. Scammell was mortally wounded and taken prisoner. It was then divided into two battalions — one under Lieut.-Col. Huntington — and assigned to Lafayette's Division at the Siege. The rosters of the Conn. companies not on file. Officers were, in part, as follows:]

OFFICERS.

Lieut.-Colonel:	Ebenezer Huntington,	Norwich,	Service as stated in note above.
Adjutant:	Nathan H. Whiting,	Hartford,	Lieut. detached from Third Regt. and appt. Adjt. of Huntington's battalion at siege of Yorktown.

THE COMPANIES IN COL. HAMILTON'S BATTALION.

[In August, '81, shortly before marching to Virginia, Washington formed a battalion of four Light Companies and assigned Lieut-Col. Alexander Hamilton to their command. At the Siege they were attached to Lafayette's Light Division. Two of his four companies were detached from the New York and two from the Connecticut "Line." The latter were as follows:]

FINAL FORMATION, "CONNECTICUT LINE."

JUNE-DECEMBER, 1783.

COLONEL SWIFT'S REGIMENT.

[While the Revolutionary army under Washington's immediate command was disbanded as a body in June, 1783, seven regiments, as stated in the text, heading D, were retained for service in the Highlands through the year. One of these was formed out of the three regiments of the Connecticut Line of the previous formation, Jan.–June, 1783, and included those men who had enlisted for definite periods shorter than "for the war." The "war" men were furloughed in June and finally discharged in the fall by general notification. This Connecticut regiment was commanded by Col. Swift and is referred to by some of its officers as "the last arrangement" of the Line. It remained at West Point or vicinity until discharged in Dec. following. Its Light Company under Capt. Hopkins formed part of Col. Hull's Light Battalion that led the American troops into New York City on its evacuation by the enemy Nov. 25, 1783.]

STATE TROOPS OR LEVIES.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

STATE TROOPS OR LEVIES, 1776.

Regiments for Temporary Service, and Service in Northern Department, New York, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

THE eight regiments called out in April and July, 1775, whose rosters appear on pp. 35–90, were raised as State regiments and adopted by Congress as Continental. With the exception of a few coast guards no other troops were required of or ordered out by the State during the first year of the war.

In 1776 three classes of troops were furnished by the State, namely, Continental, State, and Militia. The rosters of the Continentals appear on pp. 95–124. Lists of the militia appear on pages following the present heading. The State troops or "levies," were generally raised for some special object and by voluntary enlistment in new organizations. As appears in the following list some were ordered for temporary service in and out of the State, and others served actively in different fields for several months. After the year 1776, when the militia were more thoroughly organized, the regiments designated as "State" were usually made up of detachments from the militia and are entered under that heading. The levies from all the States are frequently described in the records indiscrimately as militia, in the sense that they were not Continental.

STATE REGIMENTS AT BOSTON.

JAN.-MARCH, 1776.

[During the re-organization of the Continental force before Boston, Dec., '75–Feb., '76, when the soldiers were coming and going, Washington called for regiments from the New England States to guard the lines at various points until the new army had been well established. Connecticut sent three regiments under Colonel James Wadsworth, Erastus Wolcott, and John Douglass. They reached Boston toward the end of January and remained about six weeks. The rolls of Col. Wolcott's regiment alone are on file. It formed a part of the detachment from the army that occupied Boston after the enemy evacuated the town.]

GEN. WADSWORTH'S STATE BRIGADE, 1776.

[Upon a call for re-inforcements for Washington's army in the summer of 1776, the Connecticut Assembly ordered the enlistment of seven battalions for the service to be commanded by Brig. Gen. In October all appear again under Wadsworth as per returns on file in the State Library. The regiments saw much service during the summer and fall, some of them being engaged at the battle of Long Island, the retreat from New York, Harlem Heights, White Plains, and at the fall of Ft. Company [& Regt.] were wounded, taken prisoners or killed, . . . & that the Deponent was also present at the memorable retreat from Long Island, and that on or about the 1st day of Jan., 1777, there were but seventy four or five men alive of said Company." From letter of Gen. Eph. Champion to Sec. of War, John C. Calhoun: "During the irregularities of the retreat from the City of New York to the heights of Harlem (Sept. 15, '76) in the Confusion and intermixture with the enemy of skirmishes and partial engagements, Capt. Holmes was for a short time in their power, but being an athletic man broke from the grasp of two Hessians and made his escape while Major Wyllys who was afterwards killed at Harmar's defeat was made a prisoner by his side."

Capt. Holmes joined the "Conn. Line" as Captain in the First Regt. and served four years longer.

THE number of militia regiments at the opening of the war was twenty-two. This number was presently increased to twenty-eight regiments of Infantry and five of Light Horse, the former being divided into six brigades. All able bodied persons between the ages of sixteen and fifty (less certain exempts) were subject to enrollment and duty. What the exact number was at different periods of the war does not appear on official returns, but the average was about twenty-three thousand. In 1782 the Adjutant-General reported the number at something less than twenty-one thousand. How they were organized and to what extent they rendered service is indicated in the following rolls.

SERVICE OF THE MILITIA.

RECORD FOR 1776.

THE first call upon the State militia for active service in the Revolutionary War was made in the summer of 1776, when Washington was in need of a large force to meet the enemy's threatened attack upon New York. Connecticut already had eight Continental and nine State regiments in the field, but she responded at once to an urgent request from the Commander-in-Chief to send down a portion of her militia. Two requisitions were issued. The first called out fourteen of the regiments lying west of the Connecticut River to serve from August until "the exigency should be over." Brig.-Gen. Oliver Wolcott was specially appointed to their command. The second was a call for nine of the regiments lying east of the River to serve from September with Brig.-Gen. Gurdon Saltonstall in command. As these troops were hastily summoned, poorly armed and provided for, and generally undisciplined, effective service could not be expected of them. A few of the regiments were exposed to the first attack of the enemy on New York, Sept. 15, '76, and contributed to what is sometimes described as the "panic" at Kips' Bay. Better troops would have found it difficult to withstand the shock. The experience proved a valuable one to the militiamen who were to be called out again more than once during the war.

Later in the season, when the enemy sent their ships up the Hudson to interrupt the American communications, Washington again requested Gov. Trumbull to send troops to the North River. "I know your exertions already are great," he wrote, Oct. 15, '76; "I know you have a large number of men engaged in the service in this, and the Northern army; and nothing could have induced me to mention this matter to you were it not for the alarming and melancholy consequences which will result from the enemy's possessing themselves of these communications." The Governor thereupon issued a proclamation calling upon the militia and all able bodied within the State to equip themselves without loss of time and be ready to march upon the shortest notice as exigences might require. At the same time, Oct. 21, he wrote to Washington: "Considering the services and suffering of our militia the past summer, the present sickness that prevails among them since their return from the army, and the necessity of their attention to Country business, to secure a sufficient supply of provisions for the ensuing year, it is judged that this is all that we can do, consistent with prudence, at present."

The rolls of the militia regiments are incomplete, those given in the following pages being copies of the originals in the Pension Bureau and Trumbull Papers.

REGIMENTS OF MILITIA LIGHT HORSE.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

AT NEW YORK IN 1776.

[In June, '76, detachments of Connecticut Light Horse were ordered to New York, under the command of Lt.-Col. Thomas Seymour, for temporary service. About five hundred men marched. At New York a dispute arose as to whether horsemen could be called upon to do infantry guard duty, as Washington desired, and the command was dismissed and returned home. Col. Seymour wrote a full explanation to Gov. Trumbull, published in Forces Am. Archives, vol. I, Fifth Series, p. 513.

Later in the season many of the Light Horse returned to the army and were thanked by Washington for their services. Rolls on file are as follows:]

FIELD OFFICERS.

Lieut.-Colonel:	Thomas Seymour,	Hartford,	Appt. in '76, Lt. Col. and com^ding all the Conn. Horse at New York.
Majors:	Elisha Sheldon,	Salisbury,	Commanding regiments. See "General organization" of the militia preceding.
	William Hart,	Saybrook,
	Daniel Starr,	Danbury,
	John Skinner,[1]	Hartford,

The regiments that came later, in Sept.-Oct., '76, were commanded by

Majors:	Elisha Sheldon,	——,	As above, who reported again.
	Ebenezer Backus,	Lebanon,
	Elijah Hyde,	Norwich,

[1] Major Skinner was not one of the Majors appointed under the act reorganizing the Light Horse, May, '76. He was probably acting Major for the present service.

BRIG.-GEN. ERASTUS WOLCOTT'S BRIGADE.

AT PEEKSKILL, MARCH-JUNE, '77.

[As recruiting for the Continental "Line" progressed slowly in the spring of '77, and the regiments from Connecticut were not ready to take the field in March, Washington urged the Governor to send a body of Militia to serve for six weeks at Peekskill where Gen. Erastus Wolcott vice Gen. Wadsworth first appointed. The companies were placed on duty at various points — White Plains, Crompond, Fishkill, Ft. Montgomery, &c. The rolls in part are as follows:]

MILITIA AT SARATOGA, 1777.

[Two large regiments of militia, composed of detachments from all the brigades, were ordered to re-enforce Gen. Gates at Saratoga in the summer of 1777. They were assigned to Gen. Poor's Continental Brigade in Arnold's Division, and fought in both the battles with the enemy, Sept. 19 and Oct. 9, '77. In the first battle they lost more than any two other regiments in the field. Upon their dismissal after the surrender of Burgoyne, Gates spoke of them as "two excellent militia regiments from Connecticut." They were commanded by Colonels Jonathan Latimer, of New London, and Thaddeus Cook, of Wallingford. Some of the company rolls are on file as given below.

Gen. Oliver Wolcott also joined Gates with a body of volunteers, and several militia regiments were sent to Putnam on the Hudson during the campaign.]

AT SARATOGA, 1777.

[In the latter part of Sept., '77, Gen. Oliver Wolcott issued the following notice to the Colonels of his brigade:]

. . . . "Whereas I have received an earnest requisition from Gen[l] Gates, that the approved Friends of the Country would more especially at this time step forth to assist him in suppressing the army under the command of M[r]. Burgoyne, and as it is very certain that such is the present situation of his Army that a vigorous Exertion on our part would probably be attended with the greatest success. I do therefore, Sir, relying on the firm virtue of the militia under my command, earnestly invite all such as are able and effective to go forth with me to meet this Insolent and Rapacious Foe, and by the aid of the Almighty prevent their further Devastation and Plunder.

This Invitation you will in my name be pleased to make to the Regiment under your command. A consciousness of the rectitude of our cause, the feelings of humanity, a regard to ourselves, our Country, and Posterity, will be our motives for our present undertaking. These are the motives which influence the virtuous and the good; and I trust they are motives which will influence us.

To prevent any loss of time in carrying the design of annoying the Enemy into immediate Execution you will, Sir, nominate such officers in your Regiment as will be most proper and likely to enlist or collect the men for this service. Those who engage in the present Enterprise will provide themselves with such Provisions as will be necessary to carry them to Albany or such other place where they may be directed and where they can obtain Continental Supplies. The men will at their option, either ride or march on foot as will be most agreeable; if they ride, faithful Persons must go with them to bring back their Horses. The Men will furnish themselves with arms, ammunition, and every necessary accoutrement.

As the service is intended to be not only entirely voluntary, but entered upon with the greatest Despatch, you will therefore recommend to your Regiment the utmost Expedition in their Equipment and March, without which their Service will not probably be attended with the Advantages it is designed to obtain.

You will give such Orders in regard to the Destination of your Regiment as you shall think proper until other Orders are received. The Motives of pecuniary Reward will have but little Influence upon men who engage in a Service so generous and noble, yet every one who engages in it may expect such Reward as shall be honorable and just.

OLIVER WOLCOTT,

Brigadier General."

[Wolcott informed Governor Trumbull on the 25th that he should start within a day or two, and added: "The Court will rise this morning, some of whom with a number of the Barr, will accompany me to the Northward." About 300 volunteers on horseback gathered and joined Gates a short time before the surrender. No rolls on file.]

Gen. Wolcott's Brigade Major was John Canfield. Dr. Elisha Sill was one of the party; also Capts. Rezin Gridley of Farmington, and [Simeon?] Newell, privates John Clafe and Seth North.

Maj. Elijah Hyde's Regt. of Light Horse is reported at Stillwater, Oct. 2, '77. Capt. James Green, of the same, reported present.

In the fall of '77, Brig.-Gen. John Douglass commanded a body of militia at Rhode Island under Gen. Spencer, with John Ripley as Brigade-Major — the latter having served in R. I., with several companies earlier in the year.

[Col. John Ely, of Saybrook, who had been for some time during the year in command of the posts and forts from Saybrook to Groton inclusive, was ordered with his Regiment to Rhode Island in the early fall. Later his command was back again in Connecticut at the Western End, and took part in Gen. Parsons' expedition against Long Island, Dec. 10, '77, when the Colonel was taken prisoner and not exchanged until Dec. 5, 1780. Officers taken prisoners on the same occasion were his Adjutant, Ebenezer West, exchanged Dec. 3, 1780, Ensign James Abbott, exchanged Dec. 17, '81, and Ensign Sands Niles, exchanged March 19, '81.

ARNOLD'S ATTACK UPON NEW LONDON,

SEPT. 6, 1781.

[The following names of the killed, wounded and prisoners on the American side in the British invasion of New London are taken from the carefully prepared lists in Mr. Charles Allyn's work on "The Battle of Groton Heights," (New London, 1882,) as continued from the earlier volume published by Mr. William W. Harris, of Groton, in 1870. A further search among the records fails to bring to light additional names.]

NAVAL RECORD OF CONNECTICUT IN THE REVOLUTION.

1775-1783.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

NAVAL RECORD, 1775-1783.

State Vessels,

Continental Men-of-War,

Galleys,

Privateers, Etc.

IN the loss or absence of many State and National Records bearing upon the American Navy in the Revolutionary War, the roll of Connecticut men in this branch of the service can at present be prepared only in incomplete form. The following lists have been obtained from the collections in Hartford, Boston, and Washington, and a few from papers in private hands.

CONNECTICUT STATE AND CONTINENTAL VESSELS.

1775-1783.

The first armed vessels provided by Connecticut in the Revolution were the two fitted out for State service in 1775, referred to in the pay accounts for that year printed on page 94. These were:

1. BRIGANTINE "MINERVA."

Captain.	Giles Hall, Wallingford.
1st Lieut.	Thomas Horsey, Derby (declined).
"	James Hopkins, ———.
2d Lieut.	Jehiel Tinker, ———.
"	Thompson Phillips, ———.
Steward.	Timothy Larrabee, ———.
"	Andrew Johonnot, Middletown.
Master.	William Plummett, ———.
Mate.	William Warner, ———.
Gunner.	Benjamin Cranstin, ———.

The Minerva, 108 tons, was chartered from Capt. Wm. Griswold of Wethersfield, and fitted out at Middletown. Her force consisted of 40 seamen and 40 marines. Trouble with the crew prevented the vessel from being of much service in '75. Vessel of same name in commission as late as '82.

2. SLOOP "SPY."

Captain.	Robert Niles, Norwich. Appt. Aug. 14, '75; transf. to the Dolphin*, Ap. 21, '78.
1st Lieut.	Zebadiah Smith, Norwich. Prom. Capt. Ap. 21, '78.

* [Capt. Niles was taken prisoner when the Dolphin was captured later in '78.]

In Aug. '75 the Governor's Council voted to charter a small vessel "to be used chiefly as a Spy, to run from place to place, to carry intelligence, discover the enemy, &c." It cruised in the Sound and at sea, capturing a number of prizes. In '78 the Spy was taken by the enemy and sent to England.

PRIVATEER "HARRISON."

On Oct. 24, '75, by order of Gen. Washington, Capt. William Coit of Norwich, then in Parsons' Regt. before Boston (p. 74) marched with his Company to Plymouth and took charge of the Privateer Harrison, carrying 4 carriage guns and 10 swivels. After capturing some prizes he returned home about Jan. 1, '76, on the disbandment of his Regt. Re-entered naval service later as Capt. of the Oliver Cromwell. Pownal Deming was a Sergeant under Coit, in his company and vessel.

BRIG-OF-WAR "DEFENCE."

In Feb. '76 the State chartered the Defence, which was officered as follows:

Captain.	Seth Harding, ———. Appt. Feb. 23, '76. Transf. to the Oliver Cromwell and later to the Confederacy. Succeeded by—
Captain.	Samuel Smedley, . . .	———.
1st Lieut.	Ebenezer Bartram, . .	Fairfield (resigned).
2d Lieut.	Joseph Hopkins, . . .	Middletown.
"	Henry Billings, . . .	——— (resigned).
"	Samuel Bartram, . . .	——— (resigned).
"	——— Pease, ...	———.
3d Lieut.	James Angel, ...	———.
Master.	John McCleave, . . . Capt. of Galley Whiting.	New Haven. Appt.
"	Josiah Burnham, . . .	Lyme (resigned).
"	——— Bebee, ...	———.
Lieut. Mar.	Joseph Squire, ...	———.

The Defence cruised off Boston harbor in the fall of '76 and captured several valuable prizes; also engaged in sharp and successful actions both under Capt. Harding and Capt. Smedley. In April, '78, the Defence and Cromwell fought and captured the Admiral Keppel and Cyrus—English "letters-of-marque"—and brought them into Boston.

1st Lieut.	Israel Bishop, ...	———.

The above galleys were ordered to New York, at the request of Washington, and two of them, the Whiting and Crane, were captured in the North River in the fall of '76.

A flotilla of gondolas, galleys, &c., was built on Lake Champlain in the summer and fall of '76, and commanded by Gens. Arnold and Waterbury. Among the builders of the craft were two companies of ship carpenters sent from Connecticut (by request of Gen. Schuyler), under Captains Job Winslow and Jonathan Lester. Most of the vessels were destroyed or captured in the action off Valcour's Island, Oct. 11, '76. Whether the galleys were credited to certain States or belonged to Congress is not clear. The Lady Washington was commanded by Gen. Waterbury. Arnold was on the Congress; and among others, Capt. Hawley commanded the Royal Savage; Capt. Mansfield the New Haven; Capt. Grant the Connecticut; and Capt. Warner the Trumbull. The following concerning the latter galley appears in State Library Papers :

CONTINENTAL FRIGATE "TRUMBULL."

[Under resolutions of Congress directing that two frigates, of 36 and 28 guns respectively, be built in Connecticut, Gov. Trumbull and Council voted February 17 and 18, 1777, that one of these, afterwards named the Trumbull, should be built at Chatham, on the Connecticut River, under the supervision of Capt. John Cotton of Middletown. It was completed, ready for sea, about a year later. Its first Captain, Dudley Saltonstall, being transferred to the Warren, Capt. J. Nicholson of Penn., took command. In 1781 the Trumbull was captured off the Delaware Capes by two British ships, the Iris and Gen. Monk, "after a gallant resistance of more than one hour, during which she was completely dismantled, and lost 5 killed, and 11 wounded." See Lieut. Emmons' "Navy of the U. S.," p. 3.
The other frigate built in Conn. was the Confederacy, 36 guns.]

CONTINENTAL FRIGATE "CONFEDERACY."

[See heading to frigate Trumbull, preceding. The Confederacy, 36 guns, was built on the Thames below Norwich and launched in 1778. On Oct. 20, 1779, she sailed from Philadelphia for France, having on board the French Minister, Gerard, and the newly-appointed American Minister to Spain, the Hon. John Jauy, as passengers. On the 7th of November, the vessel encountered a great storm and lost all her masts and sails, and was obliged to make her way to Martinico, reaching that port Dec. 18th. Being refitted the Confederacy put to sea again, but was subsequently, March–April, 1781, captured off the Capes of Virginia by a British Seventy-four, and taken into Charleston, S. C., then in the enemy's possession.]
